Breaking ground

CONSTRUCTION ON the Spanish Bay resort (above) is underway as workers conduct drainage improvements on the foundation of the hotel in Pebble Beach. However, problems continue to plague Pebble Beach Co. and its conveyor system to haul sand to the resort from Sawmill Gulch. Supervisors Jan. 28 are expected to adopt findings of fact to support their condition for the conveyor system use permit that effectively will block development of a reclamation facility at Sawmill Gulch. A switch to truck hauling will have its own problems. For details, see page 3. (Holly McFarland photograph.)

Planning commission study session

Major changes sought in Carmel's zoning

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A SERIES of proposed major changes to city zoning laws that will have long-term effects on commercial and residential development in Carmel will be unveiled to the planning commission Wednesday, Jan. 29.

Commissioners will meet in a special study session at 4 p.m. at city hall to review four agenda items that each in its own way will impact Carmel in years to come.

Planning Director Diane White stresses that the session will not include any action by the planning commission.

"It's a meeting designed to talk about planning issues rather than applications," she said.

In summary, the issues before the commission are:

- The long-awaited specific plan for the multiple-family residential zone (R-4) that decreases overall allowable density but provides developers with bonuses of extra units if low- and moderate-cost housing is provided. Use restrictions and parking requirements also are incorporated in the draft specific plan.

- Several draft general plan amendments, which include proposals to prohibit new visitor-oriented businesses in all commercial districts, obtain extractions from developers such as street improvements; and to make it more difficult to convert residences to commercial use.

- A report from Denise Duffy and Associates on its first phase of data gathering for the master environmental assessment program designed to provide data to guide building into the 21st century.

- Proposed amendments to the sign ordinance to clarify conditions and reduce the size of some signs.

Under preparation by a consultant and city staff for 14 months, the draft specific plan perhaps is the issue that will produce the most substantial visible immediate effects on building in Carmel since the R-4 is the least developed area of the city.

The R-4 specific plan encompasses the two blocks between Torres Street and Junipero Avenue, two blocks between Third and Fifth avenues, the south half of the block bordered between Junipero Avenue and Mission Street and Third and Fourth Avenue, and the north half of the block between Junipero Avenue and Mission Street and between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

There have been several recent development proposals in the R-4 zone, specifically for the Handley lumberyard property on the east side of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Third avenues; and his holding directly across the street that now is used for storage and manufacturing.

ALAN WILLIAMS, now representing owner Tom Handley, at one time proposed to build condominiums on the east side and a motel on the west side of the Handley properties, but that development plan has been sidetracked by the R-4 specific plan.

Williams did develop the Chimneys, an 11-unit condominium complex on the southwest corner of Junipero Avenue and Fourth Avenue. But thus far the Chimneys has not been a successful venture, sitting vacant since construction was completed months ago.

In an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, staff Planner Brian Roseth detailed some of the key issues in the draft R-4 specific plan.

Roseth explained that past zoning in the R-4 district has been "uncoordinated and haphazard," which has made preparation of the specific plan "difficult."

The uses are mixed, including the lumberyard, three motels, offices, a laundromat, condominiums and apartments.

The city currently has been trying to develop what planners call "buffers" between two unlike districts. In the R-4 zone there are no buffers between residential and commercial uses, nor are there any buffers between the condominiums and single family homes.

The questions the city must grapple with is whether there should be more condominiums in the R-4 zone, what should be done about commercial use in the district and what density should be allowed, Roseth said.

The density issue is of prime importance because most developers say they cannot make a profit with small projects since land costs are so high in Carmel. Developers argue that housing prices are lowered when more units are allowed.

Currently, the city allows 33 units per acre. If the developer builds low- and moderate-cost housing, a density bonus of 11 extra units is awarded.

Under the proposed specific plan, the number of allowable units per acre would be reduced to 22 with a density bonus of just six additional units for providing low- and moderate-cost housing.

Roseth said the city, through the specific plan, wants to encourage smaller, thus more affordable, apartments.

"The trend in Carmel has been to build large units...All have been 1,000 sq. ft. or more in size," he said. "Our housing element in the general plan directs us to provide mixed housing to provide for all different needs," he said.

CARMEL RESIDENTS do not need large apartments, Roseth said.

"In a community where there are less than two people per household it doesn't make sense to build three bedrooms," he pointed out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted, but names of letter writers may be withheld upon request.

Library should stay put

Dear Editor:

Several Carmel residents suggest a new county library at the mouth of Carmel Valley. Surely, no new library building, anywhere, is useful without adequate parking, and the shopping and business center at the Valley mouth already has a parking problem.

And, clearly, the development of Carmel Valley is planned and will be in "clusters," like Del Mesa, Hacienda, Carmel Manor, Carmel Valley Ranch, who all have their own libraries — in addition to the branch in Carmel Village and at the junior high school, and any additional service can likely be handled by the low-cost library mobile van which already operates.

So once again we come back to "Carmel library where it is, for Carmel residents."

How strange that, in the face of this clear and repeated insistence by Carmel residents, the city council and the library board spend time and money only on studies of other new buildings, but with not even a small effort to consider the best development within the present library building and grounds.

MPTV ad misleading

Dear Editor:

Recently the Pine Cone published a full page advertisement from Monterey Peninsula TV Cable which stated that the community survey conducted by the City of Carmel in 1985 evidenced "extremely high levels of satisfaction" with the cable television service provided by MPTV.

To say that this is misleading would be an understatement.

The summary responses to the two survey questions relating to cable T.V. service call for a different conclusion:

Q. (79) In your opinion, does the existing cable company (MPTV) provide an adequate variety of channels? Response: No, 55 percent; Yes, 37 percent; No Opinion, 8 percent.

Q. (80) In your opinion, does the existing cable company provide an adequate level of service? Response: No, 34 percent; Yes, 60 percent; No Opinion, 8 percent.

A richness of culture

Dear Editor:

I have been living in this community for 11 years and just now have I taken the time to write to you on how much I enjoy the programs that Sunset Cultural Center offers.

I would really like to congratulate the director's office, with such a wide variety of programs like ballet classes for all ages from professional dancers like Linda Fisher, gymnastics for youngsters, and not only the two symphonies that perform often, but the Great Performance series that include such "special events" as Vienna Choir Boys, who gave an astonishing performance, something I never expected to be able to see in this community.

Unfortunately because of my limited schedule I have missed several other performances: "Festival of Dances and Live Arts," the Uzulu Dance Company, the Guthrie Theatre and the famous Brass Band. There are more performances from the series for this remaining season that I would like to attend and would very much like to inform the people of this community.

I would like to express my thanks to the director and the management of Sunset Cultural Center for bringing such rich programs to this community.

Let the public know

Dear Editor:

Why are the powers that be afraid to reveal all the recorded information concerning the late Martin Luther King? Jan. 20 has been officially declared a national holiday in honor of King, yet Americans everywhere are forbidden by federal court order from knowing all the information that could and should be made available about that highly controversial civil rights activist.

From 1963 until King's murder in 1968, the Attorney General of the United States, Bobby Kennedy, ordered FBI director, J. Edgar Hoover, to wiretap offices used by King as well as many of the hotel rooms that he occupied during those years.

One report says that "almost 14 cabinet files" of tapes and other documentation were accumulated. Understandably there is all sorts of conjecture about the contents of those files.

On Jan. 31, 1977, a federal district judge, John Lewis Smith, Jr., ordered those tapes and transcripts locked up in the National Archives for 50 years.

Rightfully, those files belong to the American taxpayers. No federal judge should have the power to cover up important information that the public has the right to know.

No national hero worthy of the name should require this sort of federal cover up. Let the public review the facts — all the facts. And then let an informed public decide whether or not they want the late Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday celebrated as the birthday of a national hero equal in patriotism, in virtue, and in integrity to Abraham Lincoln and George Washington.

Pets as therapy

Dear Editor:

It was very gratifying to see Anne Papineau's wonderful article on the SPCA's pet therapy program. The volunteers who visit the convalescent homes with SPCA shelter pets are a special group that deserves recognition. They bring happiness to the residents of the convalescent homes and share their love with the shelter animals. Anne did a beautiful job of showing the friendships that develop and the satisfaction the program creates.

There was a single misconception in the article, though, that many people share. The Monterey County SPCA is not a branch of a larger organization and does not receive funds from a parent organization. Rather, it is a private, non-profit organization that must rely on contributions from the community for the money to continue the care, rescue and rehabilitation of animals.

Our thanks goes to Anne and the Pine Cone for helping us help the animals.

Government for the people

Dear Editor:

I think government should mind its own business and let parents, in conjunction with their doctors and physicians, decide and make the decisions regarding their newborn babies.

EDITOR'S DESK BY MAC MCDONALD

Who wants Mission Ranch?

THE FIRST donation has already come in. Well, that leaves at least $4 million, give or take a few hundred thousand dollars.

The City of Carmel has opened a public campaign for private funds to help in acquiring the historic Mission Ranch property on the outskirts of town in order to preserve what now exists there.

If successful the city plans to annex the approximately 20-acre site, lease the motel and restaurant-bar operation to private concessionaires, have the Coastal Conservancy buy the wetlands and keep it open space, have the Frohman Academy and the Carmel Heritage Society lease some of the facilities and retain the tennis courts for public use and possibly add a public swimming pool or other recreational facility in the future.

Mission Ranch Corp., of course, would like to keep the property and develop an 8.25-acre portion of it with 61 homes, 45 single-family and 16 "townhouse-style" units. "Special care" would be given to preserve the views of existing residences outside the property, a spokesman said recently.

We find the city's attempts to acquire the property an admirable one, not only for sentimental reasons, but for practical, aesthetic and environmentally-conscious reasons.

For one the Mission Ranch has a significant place in Carmel's history; it contains environmentally-sensitive habitat that should be preserved; it has one of the most spectacular views in the Carmel area; it is virtually adjacent to the historic Carmel Mission; city acquisition could provide city residents with much-needed outdoor recreational facilities and would void any adverse impact development would have on the city.

To be fair to the Mission Ranch

Simply because a person is elected to Congress or to any position in government, including president, does not suddenly increase that person's intelligence. They are cloaked in power and are privy to a lot of information, but in reality they are the same people as before, but for some reason, too many of them adopt a cavalier attitude toward the general public.

Before the president's re-election, a highly-placed bonehead in the administration confidently commented that "the people just can't comprehend the enormous size of the federal deficit." He also said that "by election time the people will have forgotten why the slaughtered Marines in Lebanon were there in the first place."

Our president thought that the twice-elected President Grover Alexander was a baseball player and that all the Nazis who fought in World War II are now dead. He doesn't like nuclear war but he mentioned wistfully to Premier Nakasone of Japan that the old-fashioned wars were civilized. Now I wouldn't want him managing my family.

Corp., the owners said they intend to take care to retain the views, will not develop the wetlands, will try to develop around the existing trees and will try to mitigate certain traffic problems that could be caused by development.

We still feel, however, that the density of the proposed development is too extreme and that the impact not only on the city of Carmel itself, but the mouth of the Valley, as well as traffic on Highway 1, has not been fully explored. The proposed development — as beautiful and well-planned as it is (according to artists' renditions) — does not exactly fit in with the character of the surrounding neighborhood.

WHILE WE applaud the city's efforts to acquire the property we also would like to see a more well-defined plan for the use and financing of the property instead of the "We could do this, we could do that" scenario that is bandied about now.

For one the city has to raise the necessary funds to purchase the property — and from a group of owners who have expressed little interest in selling just now.

And if acquired, the city must be able to maintain the financing of the purchase. What would happen, for example, if the Frohman Academy (or any other agency or concessionaire involved) decides to pull out? Does the city have a contingency plan? Will the city end up bankrolling a financial albatross? These and other questions, which must surely have occurred to other residents and taxpayers, must be answered before anyone will start jumping on the bandwagon.

It's nice to be able to go down to the always-popular Mission Ranch piano bar, but not when you have to cry in your beer and sing "How Dry I Am."

Tom Braden of television's "Crossfire" said he would go to jail before he would agree to government telling him what to do about his children. So would I.

"Government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Let's not forget it.

Preserve Mission Ranch

Dear Editor:

The Board of Directors of Carmel Heritage, which is a non-political group, supports the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea's attempt to preserve the Mission Ranch.

This site has historical significance to the greater Carmel area. Any effort by the city to secure this treasure for future generations and to preserve the irreplaceable wetlands is a move that shows long-range, responsible land-use planning and common sense.

No decision yet on fate of PB conveyor belt

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PEBBLE BEACH Co. as of Wednesday morning was still trying to decide on a course of action in the wake of a surprise and controversial decision by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Jan. 14.

Basically, supervisors granted Pebble Beach Co. a use permit for a conveyor system to haul about 530,000 cubic yards of sand out of Sawmill Gulch to its Spanish Bay resort construction site.

But supervisors conditioned the use permit so that Pebble Beach Co. would have to reforest Sawmill Gulch and dedicate the site as permanent open space.

Such a condition, if accepted by Pebble Beach Co., would halt plans for a wastewater treatment facility at Sawmill Gulch proposed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District (PBCSD), a separate publicly-elected entity.

PBCSD has plans to buy part of the Sawmill Gulch site for its wastewater treatment facility.

The decision whether to accept the condition is expected to be given to supervisors Tuesday, Jan. 28. Supervisors at 1:30 p.m. are to consider the findings of fact to support the condition.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, Carmel Sanitary District (CSD) and city of Carmel will meet Monday, Jan. 27 to discuss plans to form a joint powers agreement to build a larger regional reclamation facility on CSD property west of Highway 1 near Carmel River.

Part of the discussion will focus on the effect of the supervisors' decision on a study comparing the benefits of a regional facility and its conveyor system to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to the construction site. (Holly McFarland photograph.)

SURVEYOR GEORGE Buck keeps an eye on work at Spanish Bay resort, but problems continue to mount for the Pebble Beach Co.

with the PBCSD plant. That session is to be at 3 p.m. in the Monterey County Courthouse meeting room, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey.

Pebble Beach Co. appears to be in a no-win situation. If it accepts the condition, then the company has effectively prohibited the reclamation plant at Sawmill Gulch.

Of course, Pebble Beach Community Services District always could build the reclamation plant elsewhere in Del Monte Forest — a move that surely would anger those nearby as it has the Pacific Grove Del Monte Park neighborhood residents who reside near Sawmill Gulch.

Pebble Beach Co. also could choose not to use the conveyor system. But that would mean the company would have to use trucks to haul the sand.

THE TRUCK hauling plan stirred a storm of protest by Pebble Beach residents who live along the route during use permit hearings for Spanish Bay resort before supervisors and the Coastal Commission.

The trucks were expected to run about 10 hours a day, six days a week for at least six months.

When granting the coastal development permit last March, the Coastal Commission required the conveyor system as part of the conditions of approval.

According to staff Planner Lee Otter, Pebble Beach Co. would have to obtain an amendment to its coastal development permit from the Coastal Commission if the company wants to haul sand by truck from Sawmill Gulch.

No doubt the Coastal Commission would be swamped with protests if it were to consider a truck haul permit application.

If the company chooses it can haul sand by truck without a permit as long as the sand is obtained somewhere other than Sawmill Gulch, Otter said.

But that poses additional problems and expenses for Pebble Beach Co. because then sand will have to be purchased from another company and hauled a far greater distance than just the two miles from Sawmill Gulch to the resort construction site.

If this option is exercised Pebble Beach Co. will not just face the anger of Del Monte Forest residents along any new route, it probably will generate protest from other cities and counties.

The closest gate to the resort is in Pacific Grove. Mayor Florus Williams already has written a letter to protest any truck hauling in the city.

Williams' letter states his concern over traffic and safety issues and concludes with a warning that "the city would take every legal avenue available to us to see these trucks are not routed through Pacific Grove."

Running for mayor

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CAN THE owner of one of the most notorious t-shirt shops be elected mayor of a town world-famous for its anti-tourist attitudes in government?

Paul Laub thinks so.

Laub, a 41-year-old businessman who moved to town from Carmel Valley just a week ago, is the first candidate to turn in nomination papers for the April 8 Carmel City Council election.

In his first try at elected office, Laub probably will challenge two-time incumbent Mayor Charlotte Townsend, who has indicated she will seek re-election but has not filed nomination papers. Bruce Roberts, who lost in the council race by a dozen votes in 1983, has taken out papers to run for mayor, but he too had not returned the necessary signatures by press time.

Under a new election law, a candidate need only be registered to vote in the city prior to the close of the nomination period, which is Jan. 30. The 41-year-old Laub is registered to vote here and he, his wife and small child are living in one of the two homes he owns in town. They stay at his Carmel Valley residence on weekends.

Although he has lived in Carmel Valley since opening a business in Carmel since 1972, Laub said he is a part of this town.

"I spent 12 hours a day, seven days a week here for years. I slept in Carmel Valley. My waking hours and all my energy hours are here in Carmel," Laub said.

Laub's foray into Carmel politics is just another episode in his long-running feud with city government.

Laub has been often chastised for his t-shirt shop, Laub's Country Store, in the heart of downtown on the southwest corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street. Prior to last summer's ice cream cone fiasco for the city, t-shirts were the epitome of all that is wrong with downtown Carmel.

Laub has also sued the city for its slow use of in-lieu fee funds for new parking facilities in town and generated a tremendous amount of publicity when he battled Pebble Beach Co. for the right to use the name Pebble Beach on his t-shirts. The courts gave Laub the okay, but refused to allow him to use the company logo on the t-shirts.

IN ADDITION, Laub converted his Paradise building, northeast corner of Dolores Street and Ocean Avenue, into a mini-mart, which sparked a city moratorium on the subdivision of commercial space until a stringent ordinance could be adopted to restrict conversions.

Laub also owns a building on the southeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street.

During his frequent comments to the council, Mayor Townsend often chastised Laub and other businessmen for complaining rather than moving to town and becoming involved.

Laub apparently has taken the mayor's advice.

And Laub is running for mayor rather than council because he views the mayor's job as a position of power that can more readily effect change.

"I think she's a wonderful person," Laub said of the mayor. "But she doesn't have the background in making these things work. She means well," he said.

"It's like, would you fly a plane where the pilot has the best intentions of taking you there safely, he's been elected to the position of pilot but has never learned to fly the plane and is not fond of listening to those who know how to fly?"

Laub does believe that more than one challenger to the mayor will hurt their chances while improving hers.

"I think it would deny voters the right to effect change," Laub said.

Laub sees his base of support as "citizens who want a strongly residentially-oriented community but who do not want a damaged business area and who would like to recapture the town for themselves."

"My plans specifically are to do as directed by the people, but to actually solve the problems rather than talk about them."

To nobody's surprise, Laub is running on a pro-business, more-parking platform, although he tempers his comments to ensure that he points out that he has the residents' concern at heart as well.

"I feel that there are things that need to be done that the community needs that are not being addressed. One is the parking problem."

"I intend on getting the parking off residential areas and making access to the downtown shopping area easy," Laub said.

"One of the main reasons why locally-oriented businesses have left and gone down to the mouth of the Valley is because people cannot park close to where they're going."

ON THAT end, Laub favors construction of a large parking garage at Sunset Center financed through a variety of resources, including in-lieu fees, a parking assessment district, and user charges.

During the hour-long interview, Laub provided a glimpse of where he stands on a number of issues in town, including:

• The current council: "I'm not specifically against these people. It's not just this council, it's previous councils too. They're paying too much for what they're getting and they're not getting what they need."

• Parking: In addition to the Sunset Center garage, Laub would like to explore the possibility of buying the Hodges property by Mission Ranch for use as a parking facility. Shuttle buses then could be used to transport visitors to Carmel.

• Mission Ranch: Laub appears to support purchase of Mission Ranch Resort but only at a reasonable price. "At the right price I would be interested. I'm not opposed because these opportunities are going to come up less and less. I'm just not willing to sell the city to buy Mission Ranch."

• Library expansion: Laub does not favor current plans to build a 4,500-sq. ft. annex. He wants to see a larger annex to meet space needs or explore further the possible expansion in the garden area or buying an adjacent building.

• Odello's: Laub sympathizes with the Odello's, who have tried to develop their site on the east side of Highway 1 about one-half mile south of Rio Road. City lawsuits have stalled the project. Laub said he wants to ensure the Odello's receive a fair and equitable settlement for their investment.

Beach Co. has consistently shown it is not sensitive to the people who live within its borders and even less so to the people outside its borders, yet they still have a right to develop their property as long as it doesn't hurt someone else."

Prior to suing, which is what Carmel has already done, Laub said he would negotiate directly with owner Marvin Davis. If that failed, he then would take court action.

• City involvement outside its borders: "You have to realize no man or city is an island. To help in the change rather than react is beneficial as long as what they're after is a well-planned change accepted by everybody."

• Hutton Canyon Freeway: Laub wants Caltrans to widen Highway 1 rather than build a new freeway since the state owns sufficient right-of-ways for at least two additional lanes.

Carmel High honored as top 25 school

FOR THE second year in a row Carmel High School has placed in the top 25 public high schools across the state.

According to the California Schools Survey organization in Sacramento, Carmel High School ranked 21st in the state based on the California Assessment Program (CAP) test scores.

The class of 1985 scores were: 98 in reading, 95 in writing, 93 in spelling and 95 in math. Those scores also placed CHS as the top high school in Monterey County.

Banning High School, a magnet campus in the Los Angeles Unified School District, was named the best high school in the state.

The closest schools to Carmel to finish in the top 20 are Palo Alto, Gunn (Palo Alto), Los Gatos and Saratoga high schools — all in Silicon Valley.

Carmel finished number 20 last year. The California Schools Survey, a private organization, considered over 900 high schools in its study.

Planners study major changes in zoning laws

A key consideration in the reduction of allowable density is the city's diminishing water supply, Roseth said.

THE PLANNING commission Jan. 29 will view for the first time a revised specific plan for the multiple-family residential zone that will incorporate new density guidelines. Under the draft specific plan the Chimneys (above) could not be constructed at its present density of 11 units. (Holly McFarland photograph.)

The city has set aside water for buildout of the R-4 zone, but at the current 44 units per acre density there simply is not enough water for development, he said.

In addition to the decreased density, the draft specific plan would establish firm guidelines on design and detailed parking requirements.

The design of any new apartments must be compatible with single family homes, especially buffering the R-1 zone on Torres Street between Fifth and Third avenues, Roseth said. This plan to buffer the border between R-4 and R-1 could also include duplexes, thus far frowned upon by the city.

The minimize size of any one building will be 4,000 sq. ft. and a maximum of 8,000 sq. ft., under the draft ordinance.

No building shall be higher than two stories and most existing views will be protected.

One major viewshed is of Point Lobos from Third Avenue toward Junipero Avenue — a major entry into the central part of town.

Roseth explained that any developer of the lumberyard will be given density bonuses to keep the view open.

"This is a significant amenity that we would like to see protected in the plan," Roseth said.

New parking restrictions will require two spaces for two and three bedrooms, one space for each one-bedroom and a half space for each studio. In addition, for every four units, one extra parking space will have to be provided.

Current parking requirements are just one-half space for a studio and one space for each apartment (no designated size).

Each commercial use will have a specific number of required parking spaces, but generally the requirement will be one slot for each 400 sq. ft. of space. Currently the city requires one space per 1,000 sq. ft. of retail use.

Existing commercial uses in the R-4 zone will be allowed to continue.

The gasoline station, northeast corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues, does pose a difficult problem since so far any development plans have included demolishing the use.

Roseth indicated that the city intends to protect the gas station through a special significant community land resource (SCLR) designation because there are only three service stations in town.

'THERE'S ALWAYS incompatibility between gas stations and residential use, yet the city cannot really afford to lose such a valuable asset,' Roseth said.

And development plans to demolish the service station would be approved only upon guarantees that the facility will be replaced somewhere else in town, under provisions of the draft specific plan.

The proposed R-4 specific plan is not the only development-oriented issue before the planning commission next week.

In addition, commissioners are to review several proposed amendments to the city general plan.

The key proposed amendments include:

- A provision to allow the city to require developers and new businesses to provide "extractions," which are usually improvements to streets and drainage systems impacted by the building.

- A provision that will allow general plan policy P-1-4 to be enforced in all commercial districts. Currently P-1-4, which is used to halt the proliferation of tourist-oriented business, is effective for the central commercial zone in the language that now exists in the general plan.

- A provision that will "require all visitor-oriented retail businesses to be located only in the core area of the commercial zone within the central commercial district."

- Several policies on circulation that will allow the city to utilize different planning tools to minimize traffic congestion. The key policy will allow the city to close the Pebble Beach gate at San Antonio Road because of traffic problems in the residential zone that may be increased with the completion of Spanish Bay resort.

- A provision that will preserve natural drainage areas because development has generated major storm water runoff problems for the city.

- A provision that will restrict lot splits to areas of 10,000 sq. ft. or more. Lot splits that would create parcels smaller than 5,000 sq. ft. would be prohibited by this amendment.

- A provision that will prohibit the conversion of residential space into commercial use and make it more difficult to demolish residences now in the commercial district.

The three-phased study now being conducted by Denise Duffy and Associates also will be discussed by the commission.

Commissioners will hear a report from Duffy on phase one of the project, which included data gathering on parking, traffic circulation, types of business in town and trends in commercial uses.

In addition, the commission is to review proposed amendments to the sign code, which recommend the reduction in the maximum size of flat signs from 10 to eight feet. Hanging signs would retain a maximum three-foot size.

There will be a proposed designation between commercial and non-commercial signs and no existing signs would be amortized, under the draft ordinance.

Last call for comments on walkway plans

IT'S ALMOST last call for public comments on the draft environmental impact report (EIR) for the nearly $1 million Carmel Beach rehabilitation project.

The draft EIR has generated only a handful of comments in a special planning commission session and two letters as the deadline of Jan. 31 nears.

Copies of the draft EIR are available for public review at city hall and Harrison Memorial Library.

The city has plans to develop an approximately one-mile-long walkway on the ocean side of Scenic Road. The plan includes new and repaired access stairs, a reduction in parking spaces and wash-off areas.

The Carmel Planning Commission did conduct a public hearing on the draft environmental impact report, but only a handful of citizens spoke.

Robert Coffin suggested that the city seriously study the effects of parking reductions on the neighboring streets. He also urged that the city include public restroom facilities and additional refuse disposals as part of the plan.

Bernard Anderson reiterated the need for public restrooms as did Peggy Arnold. Arnold also lobbied for better police patrols along Scenic Road.

But the planning department has received just two letters since the public hearing.

William Smith of Michigan, who has a home on Scenic Road, raised concerns about the proposed fencing.

For safety reasons, the plan includes provisions for several fences in areas where the walkway nears steep beach banks.

"While the EIR report states that only 10 percent of the project area is affected by guard rails, 100 percent of the area in front of our house is thus affected," Smith wrote in a letter to the city.

The guard rails "would virtually eliminate the view from our house of the beach and the breaking surf," he wrote.

Smith proposes that the city "relocate the walkway eastward to provide the necessary five-foot clearance from the edge of the bluff to the edge of the walkway. If necessary, reduce the width of the walkway to its minimum five-foot width throughout this area."

A second letter has been received from the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) that recommends additional study on traffic impacts.

"Increased parking demand on San Antonio Avenue and nearby cross streets resulting from the project has been identified as having a potential impact which would not be fully mitigated by proposed mitigation measures," wrote AMBAG Executive Director Nicolas Papadakis.

"If the project is implemented, AMBAG staff recommends that parking and circulation in the San Antonio Avenue area be monitored. If problems are found to exist a parking plan or program should be developed and implemented," Papadakis continued.

City planner Brian Roseth explained that comments received during the review period will be responded to by the consultant in a supplemental EIR.

The draft environmental impact report then will be presented to the planning commission and city council for certification. The project EIR also must be approved by the Coastal Commission.

ed walkway plan could alleviate some of the concerns. The draft environmental impact report is now in the public review period. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Supervisor seeking applicant for fire committee

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is inviting applications from interested constituents for a three-year appointment to the Monterey County Service Area No. 43 Advisory Committee. The committee advises the board of supervisors in all matters of fire protection in its area.

Interested residents of the area should contact Strasser Kauffman at 1200 Aguajito Rd., Monterey, or call 649-6515.

Wants Mission Ranch in sphere of influence

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE CITY of Carmel intends to lobby extensively for major changes in a draft environmental impact report (EIR) on the proposed Monterey Peninsula Sphere of Influence report.

Prepared by the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), the draft EIR details the effects of changes in the proposed spheres of influence for the various Monterey Peninsula cities.

A public hearing on the draft EIR is to be conducted before LAFCO at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28 at the county courthouse in Salinas.

The city of Carmel plans to push for alterations to the EIR that will incorporate Pescadero Canyon and the areas south of Rio Road to Point Lobos — including the Odello property, part of Mission Ranch and Mission Fields — in its sphere of influence.

The LAFCO staff has recommended that Carmel's sphere of influence include the Mission Ranch Resort buildings, but not the wetlands to the south. The city wants all of the Mission Ranch area incorporated in its sphere of influence in the event of an annexation.

Areas not included within the sphere of influence of Carmel cannot be annexed by the city in the future.

The city also wants Pescadero Canyon to the north annexed someday to prevent further development of that environmentally sensitive area.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend, in a letter to AMBAG, said the city is "extremely skeptical" that the trees in Pescadero Canyon will be protected in view of the policies in the Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan that allowed thousands of trees to be removed for the Spanish Bay resort and development on the northern side of Pescadero Canyon.

The canyon would be far better protected by the city and its full-time forestry crew than by the county and Pebble Beach Co., the mayor contends.

The city wants the draft EIR to eliminate a statement that reports Carmel does not have the available water to supply annexed areas.

THE EIR states the city of Carmel "probably could not annex these areas without exceeding its water allocation."

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District General Manager Bruce Buel has written LAFCO a letter that rejects the assumption in the draft EIR.

"This conclusion is not necessarily valid in that some transfer of water would accompany the annexation," Buel wrote in a letter to the city and LAFCO.

"The district board, in establishing the water allocation, determined that prior to any annexation, the district would negotiate between the county and the respective city to determine the amount of water that would be transferred from the county to that city.

"The district automatically transfers the average use of the area, but the negotiation speaks to the amount of water that should be transferred to accommodate the future land use development of the area in question.

"Since the magnitude of a particular transfer cannot be determined prior to such negotiations, the conclusion in the EIR cannot be supported," Buel added.

Also related to Mission Ranch, the mayor wrote that the city objects to the word "may" in the EIR provision, "under Carmel's recommended sphere the city may reduce the permitted density of residential development in this area."

To which the mayor responds, "The record on the rezoning of this property is clear. The city's position is that there is far more wetland area that was protected under the rezone and the proposed density is inconsistent with the surrounding neighborhood.

"If annexed to the city the allowable number of units and density would be reduced for Mission Ranch," Mayor Townsend stressed.

A DOG KEEPS a watchful eye over Mission Ranch as his master does some painting work on the restaurant. The city of Carmel wants to alter several provisions in the proposed environmental impact report for new spheres of influence that directly relate to Mission

Ranch Resort. A key issue is whether all of Mission Ranch will be included in the city's sphere of influence. If not, Carmel would be unable to annex the property. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Library board to decide on size of library annex

AN INDICATION of whether the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees will try to finance a larger annex may be forthcoming next week.

Trustees will discuss annex plans when they meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28 at city hall.

Most of the discussion is expected to center on a Jan. 14 decision by the council that deemed the proposed library annex and accompanying underground parking garage project is in conformance with the general plan.

The council, although seemingly endorsing a $750,000, 4,500 sq. ft. project, has indicated it is willing to review a larger facility as long as trustees can afford the construction and staff costs without asking the city for additional funds.

The council is using city funds to pay for the 20- to 24-space underground parking garage while the annex is to be financed by a $1 million library endowment budget.

The question is whether the library board will try for a larger building.

The last time the issue was specifically discussed — at a board meeting in November — trustees were evenly divided.

President Jack Billwiller and longtime Trustee Bernard Anderson favored moving ahead with the smaller annex, which could be added to at a later date when additional funds are available.

But Trustees Ron Kabat and George Rommell believe the annex is too costly for too little space.

Trustee Tom Duffy, who in the past has raised questions about the wisdom of spending most of the endowment fund for an annex half the needed size, was absent from that session.

Council favors outdoor seating moratorium

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE CARMEL City Council apparently does not want this town filled with Paris-style sidewalk cafes.

The council appears to be moving toward a moratorium on outside seating for restaurants and will take up the issue when it meets at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 4 at city hall.

The moratorium idea was presented by Councilman James Wright following an extensive hearing Jan. 14 on a plan from Collage restaurant to expand its outdoor seating in McFarland Center, northwest corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue.

With Wright dissenting, the council overturned the planning commission and allowed Collage its additional outdoor seating. The exact number and conditions to the use permit are to be worked out by the planning commission, the council directed.

The planning commission had denied the original permit application on a 3-3 vote.

There was little discussion on Wright's suggestion, except for Councilmen David Maradei and Robert Stephenson to say they supported the concept.

Wright's proposal is designed to give the city time to develop outdoor seating regulations before additional applications have to be considered.

Planning Director Diane White after the meeting said she took Wright's suggestion as a directive to staff to bring back a proposed moratorium on outdoor seating.

White did say that past approvals of outdoor seating have not meant restaurant expansions because the eating establishments are trading permitted indoor seats for outdoor use.

"There hasn't been any expansion of restaurant seating since the water ordinance went into effect (more than a year ago)," White said.

Under terms of the water ordinance, which severely restricts commercial development, it is "impossible for a restaurant to expand," she said.

The Collage restaurant case is complicated because of the swift changeover in predecessors, the council learned from the staff report.

The original use permit issued in 1977 was for a soda fountain known as Gibson's Ice Cream Store. The permit authorized 40 interior seats and another 40 on the roof deck. Subsequent checks by the fire marshal revealed that for safety reasons only 39 seats could be allowed on the roof.

According to White's staff report, "this authorization was given only to the applicant and was to be re-established at the time of ownership change."

A YEAR later the restaurant switched owners and began serving sandwiches, soup, salads, beer and wine.

Thirty-nine rooftop seats were allowed to continue "with the stipulation that the number could be reduced by the building and fire inspectors if found in violation," White told the council.

In 1978 the ice cream portion of the restaurant was eliminated and the establishment took on a new name, the Greenery Cafe.

Again the number of seats remained the same.

In 1979 the city authorized a use permit to expand the restaurant into an adjacent store and the number of interior seats were increased from 40 to 75. Outdoor seating remained the same.

Now called the Sandwich Shop, the restaurant was permitted to start serving breakfast through a city use permit issued in 1982.

One year later a new owner and a new name, Myron's Elephant, were approved by the city and the number of roof deck seats was reduced to 34 as a condition of the permit.

In 1984 the restaurant name was changed to the Bayou Cafe and the new owner reduced roof deck seating by eight, to 31, and was given city permission to establish eight seats in the McFarland Center courtyard.

In May 1985 the current owners, Gaston and Walter Georis (who also own Casanova's), applied for a use permit for Collage restaurant. Upon inspection by the building official, the 31 roof deck seats were ruled to be in violation of the city building code, which states "the second story shall be provided with not less than two exits when the occupant load is 10 or more."

There is only one access to the Collage roof, but for some reason in the past this building code provision was never invoked.

After negotiations with the city, Collage applied for 10 roof deck seats and 29 courtyard seats. After several more meetings, the applicant reduced the proposed outdoor seating to 22.

But on Oct. 23 the board of adjustments denied the application on a 3-3 vote even though the actual number of seats would be reduced by 17 as a condition of the permit.

The three opponents did not want to see additional commercial use in what they believe is supposed to be open space.

In a letter to the council, architect MacKenzie Patterson pointed out that the owners signed an agreement to close escrow only after a meeting with city staff indicated 29 outdoor seats would be allowed.

"In fact Gaston Georis left the meeting believing that the rearrangement of the seating was a solution approved by the building official requiring no other action on his part," Patterson wrote.

PATTERSON SAID Georis agreed to compromises, cutting the seats to 22 and installing landscape planters as a buffer between the outdoor seating and neighboring shops.

At the council meeting of Jan. 14 several of the court shopkeepers supported the application for 22 outdoor seats.

Attorney William Soskin also wrote the council stating that the compromise will result in a decrease of seats and water use — a savings of about 1,000 gallons annually.

Noise complaints, common with roof deck seating, have been non-existent with the eight currently-allowed outdoor seats, Soskin wrote.

During the council discussion, Stephenson questioned why the city should allow intrusion of use in what is supposed to be open space. But apparently he was swayed by the overall reduction in number of seats because eventually he voted to grant the appeal and give Collage its outdoor seating.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold said the outdoor seating "adds greatly to the ambience of the courtyard...I find outdoor seating rather attractive."

Maradei said the applicant "has been caught in a bad situation" because the city does not have standards for outdoor seating.

In other action Jan. 14, the council:

- Approved on second reading an ordinance designed to require newspaper distribution in specific city-authorized stands. The ordinance becomes effective Feb. 14.

- Approved an application from Doney Pavick and Diane Knight to open an arts and crafts studio on the east side of Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. The planning commission had denied the application.

- Authorized the mayor to send letters of appreciation to Virginia Atkinson for her service on the forestry commission and Rose Long for her work on the recreation committee. Both have resigned.

Carmel businessman on Afghan relief mission

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PETERSON CONWAY could have spent the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., holiday reaping the benefits of extra tourists pouring into his Dolores Street business.

Instead, this week Conway is braving the wrath of Soviet soldiers and Afghan government troops to deliver two tons of medical supplies and clothing to the war-torn country halfway across the globe.

And Conway hopes to return with two young Afghan orphans. The private school Briarcliff Academy has promised security and an education for the children. Conway also will deliver letters and photographs from the children of Briarcliff Academy to an Afghan refugee camp school.

Conway, a Carmel Valley resident who owns a downtown import store that features many Afghan artifacts, is on his 70th trip to that country since 1962 and it is his second visit this year.

Getting to Afghanistan has been no easy task since the country was invaded by the Soviet Union Christmas Day, 1979, sending thousands of Afghan refugees streaming across the border into neighboring Pakistan.

Conway, who speaks Pushtu and Farsi, started out on Monday and will stop in a Northern Pakistan refugee camp to deliver medical supplies he obtained by soliciting major U.S. pharmaceutical companies throughout the year. He also has clothing and canvas for tents to deliver.

"What I hope to do is find out their realistic up-to-date needs in terms of financial assistance and medical requirements," Conway said.

When he returns, Conway wants to start a fund-raising drive to help the refugees, who number 3.25 million in his estimation.

"There is more deprivation, more starvation than even in the Cambodia crisis," he said.

"Inside Afghanistan is a pretty dangerous place. Last time we could only travel at night. The clinic was a mobile clinic by stretcher and donkey," Conway explained.

The clinic is operated through a group called Doctors Without Borders.

It's a strenuous trip as well, taking eight to 12 days over the 16,000-ft. Hindu Kush Pass just north of Khyber Pass.

During his last visit, Conway's caravan came across four Soviet soldiers, two of whom had been captured, the other pair defectors.

"ONE COMMANDER said he was told he was coming to Afghanistan to fight the American and Chinese imperialists," Conway said.

The Soviet made the "typical parallel to Vietnam," Conway said.

The soldier didn't believe that his country or the United States should be involved in Afghanistan.

The Soviet came to the conclusion that the Afghans are "obviously a primitive people struggling for their freedom. He was pro-Soviet, but he was pro-Afghan," Conway said.

Asked why he risks his life to help the Afghans, Conway said, "I guess a big part of my heart is in Afghanistan."

"I have a tremendous respect and admiration for their love of freedom and their integrity. I respect their way of life and it should be preserved. The Russian occupation is a tragedy to the spirit of the Afghan people."

Before leaving, Conway spoke to Briarcliff Academy students as part of a school project.

The students have written letters to the children of Darakhot refugee camp. Included in the letters to be delivered by Conway are photographs of the Briarcliff students.

"It's a mud-walled, mud-floored school in a bombed-out mosque," he said. "Many of the children are casualties of the war. They're missing arms and legs, some are paralyzed from nerve gas."

Conway also has visas to bring back two Afghan children. Briarcliff Academy has pledged to educate the Afghan children.

Conway asks that if anyone in the Carmel area would like to adopt the Afghans, to contact Briarcliff Academy at 624-4815.

PETERSON CONWAY is on his way to Afghanistan, ferrying medical supplies and clothing to the war-torn country. Conway also hopes to return with two orphan Afghans for adoption in the Carmel area. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Phoning for FOCUS

FRIENDS OF the Carmel Unified Schools (FOCUS) has launched its annual phone-a-thon from the offices of Merrill Lynch at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

For the next five early Wednesday evenings parents will be calling residents of the school district boundaries for financial pledges.

The phone-a-thon is one of the group's biggest fund-raisers, having garnered $30,000 last year.

In return for their telephone work, the parent clubs receive funds from FOCUS to spend as the groups wish.

FOCUS is a non-profit group established to raise funds for the public schools. The funds are granted directly from FOCUS to projects approved by the FOCUS board.

Carmel woman embarks on 3,300-mile march

By MAC McDONALD

IT WAS Sir Edmund Hilary who said, when asked why he scaled Mount Everest, "Because it's there." Well Carmel's Jacquelyn Smith could very well say, when asked why she's walking across the United States, "Because it may not be there."

Smith, you see, is taking the 3,300-mile trek, dubbed "The Great Peace March,"

CARMEL'S JACQUELYN Smith is set to embark on a 3,300-mile march across the United States with 2,500 other hardy souls in the Great Peace March sponsored by Pro Peace, a non-profit non-partisan organization committed to nuclear disarmament. (Mac McDonald photo.)

from Los Angeles to Washington D.C. with 2,500 other trekkies in order to awaken the national consciousness to the dangers of nuclear arms race and the need for global nuclear disarmament, before our world — and everything in it, including Mount Everest — is destroyed forever.

"I think we're at a crossroads," said the 30-year Carmel resident who is coordinator of Nuclear Weapons Freeze of Monterey County. "If the U.S. acts now we could step back from the brink. I think the Soviet Union is in a difficult position economically; they don't want to pour any more money into weapons. They want to be more competitive with the Western world."

The march is sponsored by Pro Peace, a non-profit, non-partisan organization founded by David Mixner, and is expected to ship off on March 1. Walkers, who will be accompanied by six cafeteria trailers and trucks carrying solar-heated showers as well as specially-designed camping tents made possible by a $200,000 donation from actor Paul Newman, are expected to arrive in the nation's capital Nov. 15, where a huge rally is scheduled.

To Smith, however, there is more than politics involved in this march.

"This march is designed to educate, inspire and empower people to view this entire issue as a moral and personal question, not just a political one," she said. "I feel our youth need to be inspired."

There are also some very personal reasons why she's taking a year's leave of absence to take the strenuous eight-and-a-half month hike.

"I've been doing this (coordinating Freeze movement) for five years and feel I needed a break. I'm very committed; it's a once-in-a-lifetime experience and a chance to meet with people from all areas of the country and talk to them," she said. "I really wanted to discover what it means to be a human being on this planet. I wanted to experience being with a lot of people with common goals and see how we work together.

"I've never done anything like this before."

SMITH SAID she also wanted to challenge her comfortable, quiet Carmel lifestyle, to step out of the friendly and non-threatening womb that can be the Monterey Peninsula.

"I also wanted to go through my desire for comfort," she said, struggling for words to express her motivations and feelings. "I want to confront my resistance to not being comfortable, and go through that. I was really inspired by Winnie Mandela (wife of jailed South African dissident Nelson Mandela) and her prison experience."

She will be accompanied on her trip by her long-time companion Richard Woodward, who will be in the march for the first five weeks before returning.

Each marcher, who will walk 15 miles a day, six days a week, is asked to raise about $3,000 to pay for the cost of the trip, which is estimated to cost a total of $21 million.

With that in mind a benefit rummage sale for Pro Peace to sponsor local walkers (there are four others, including Brigit Ball of Carmel Valley), will be held at 9 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 25 at Junipero and Fifth in Carmel. Hundreds of new and used items, from books and furniture to clothing and jewelry, will be on sale.

Mysterious poll questions residents about election

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A MYSTERIOUS telephone poll probably designed to gauge public sentiment on the upcoming April 8 election was conducted last week, but thus far every major political candidate and organization denies knowledge of the survey.

The telephone poll apparently was conducted starting the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 14 and appeared to have been completed within a couple of days.

The person on the telephone identifies himself as a representative of Cal-Western of Orange County, but will not release additional details.

The one Cal-Western listed in the Orange County telephone book is a trucking firm. There are numerous Cal-West firms in the book, but none are listed to be identified as a research or polling firm.

The survey, which took approximately 20 minutes according to several people called, asks questions based on such issues as Mission Ranch Resort, the Odello property and library expansion.

The caller also questions the resident about potential political candidates, most of whom were reported in the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook. Candidates mentioned by the pollster ranged from Mayor Charlotte Townsend to actor Clint Eastwood.

At first it appeared that the survey could be another project by the Carmel Property Owners Association (CPOA), which had conducted a telephone poll of residents late last year on key community issues.

But Matt Little, president of the CPOA, said the group is not involved in the more recent poll.

A couple of questions related to actors in politics, specifically naming President Reagan, Ed Asner, Jane Fonda and Eastwood.

Eastwood, a longtime Carmel resident, world-famous actor and partner in the Hog's Breath restaurant, has been rumored to want a council seat.

However, Eastwood said he is not involved in the poll nor is he seeking office.

"I'm not involved with this," said Eastwood, who reiterated that he is not a council candidate.

"I've had my disagreements with the council and I disagree now (but) I am not a candidate," Eastwood stressed.

Former Mayor Barney Laiolo, an adversary of this council and whose wife, Elinor, at one time was rumored to be a candidate, said he had nothing to do with the poll. Mrs. Laiolo has indicated she will not run for council.

THE BUSINESS community, most of whom disagree with the council's tough pro-resident stance, also appear to be uninvolved.

Joan DeMers, president-elect of the Carmel Business Association, said, "I haven't heard of it. I have no idea."

A similar statement came from Bruce Roberts, who was narrowly defeated in the 1983 election and is running for mayor this year.

"I'm not involved and I don't know who's sponsoring it or why," he said.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend, also a candidate for re-election, said, "I've had a number of calls from people who are confused, who are angry. They don't know who has commissioned it and they don't understand why. They (the callers) won't say why."

The mayor said she is "always interested" in obtaining more information about how citizens think, but she is concerned that the CPOA and this new pollster may not release the results.

"I'm very upset that both polls will not be available," she said. "You have to wonder not who commissioned it, but why."

Dancing the nights away in fine fashion

was through the Regional Occupation Program (ROP) opened to students from local high schools and taught at CHS by Robin Schott. Below at left, Pacific Grove High School senior Julia Sparrow put the finishing touches on her makeup while at right CHS junior Mike Whipple does a flip during a break dancing number. Celebrity cooking to celebrity quipping

THE PLACES to be this past weekend was either at the Gala of Galas with its sparkling crew of celebrity chefs or (and?) listening to quips from the master of political humor, Mark Russell, all in the vicinity of the Monterey Sheraton-Monterey Conference Center.

Celebrities ranging from Clint Eastwood and Jane Wyatt to Rep. Leon Panetta, Allen Funt and Hank Ketcham whipped up culinary delights from specially designed and constructed "mini" kitchens at the first Gourmet Gala in the Sheraton's grand ballroom for the 400 or so black-tie and evening-gown-attired-guests (The Sheraton staff whipped up most of the food for the masses, using the celebrity recipes, of course.)

Most spectacular "kitchen" was the antique car manned (or is that driven?) by Lord and Lady Ferguson. Yes, a real touring car in the ballroom. Most whimsical (and realistic) had to be Eastwood and Gary Ibsen's "Spaghetti Western" motif kitchen designed by T. Scott Moore. You could almost hear the theme from The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, if you listened close enough.

If the brief glimpse the press people had is any indication, the Gourmet Gala stands to become one of the peninsula's hottest tickets and better fund-raising events in the coming years. The event, at $100 a ticket, was sold out in advance. All for a good cause, the March of Dimes fight against birth defects.

ANOTHER EVENT that may well become a popular ticket every year is, believe it or not, the joint annual meeting of the Community Hospital Foundation and Auxiliary. Last year they had Beverly Sills and this year political humorist Mark Russell. How are they going to top themselves next year? The Pope? The Gipper?

Russell was in rare form, throwing his whimsical and satirical darts at everything and everybody, from the Carmel City Council to Col. Kaddafi.

One of his biggest laughs came when he said the entertainment committee was having a hard time choosing next year's special guest: "It's between Pope John Paul...and

CLINT EASTWOOD, Anne Anka, and Allen Funt donned aprons and joined forces as celebrity chefs at the inaugural

Kathryn Crosby. You folks have a lot of interest in infallibility." Zing.

Russell must have boned up on his local news because he had zingers for, among others, Pebble Beach Co., golf courses, the aforementioned city council, the two-symphony orchestras ("Before you know it every bedroom will have a string quartet"), the wealth of restaurants here, and hotel development in Monterey.

He said Clint Eastwood auctioned off his chef's apron at the Gourmet Gala for charity. After selling the apron, "selling a building to the Carmel City Council will be a piece of cake."

And more on Carmel: "A man was arrested in Carmel for trying to sell an ice cream cone...to an undercover police officer. It was butter pecan...with a street value of a dollar and a quarter."

On t-shirts (read: Paul Laub) and Pebble Beach Co.: "If the Pebble Beach Co. had any imagination at all they would sell t-shirts that say... 'Tijuana.'"

The capacity crowd loved every minute of it. The peninsula (and the nation) could use more of Russell's humorous insights and observations. How about bringing Russell back next year?

CHINESE CONSUL AT ZANTMAN GALLERY

It's not often that art galleries in Carmel get foreign government dignitaries to pay visits, so the appearance of Chen Shuyu, consul to the U.S. of the People's Republic of China, and Li Mo-Su, vice consul, at the Zantman Art Galleries on Sixth Avenue was a noteworthy event.

Chen and Li, who were accompanied by their wives were here to open a show of contemporary Chinese folk art, a joint effort by Zantman and the Chinese Art Gallery of Beijing under the auspices of the Ministry of Culture. The works themselves, done in watercolor, depict rural life in China in an explosion of color and action in dense, free-form compositions not unlike some examples of primitive or Americana art, but with a more overstated humor and activity.

Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Zantman, owners of the gallery, were on hand to greet the dignitaries and give them a brief tour, including works of other artists displayed in the gallery.

Babies born at Salinas Valley Memorial include: Russell James Joyce, a literary fellow born Jan. 6, 1986 to Dr. Frank and Christina Joyce of Carmel Valley; and Beth Courtney McFadden, Jan. 4, to Timothy and Esther McFadden of Salinas. Timothy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D.H. McFadden of Carmel Valley.

INTERPRETING OUR HISTORY

The Jan. 6 meeting of the Carmel Women's Club was highlighted by a speech from Dr. Henry Littlefield, headmaster at York School, on the topic "Interpretation of American History," by all accounts a talk that offered new perspectives on an old subject, based on writings of great American historians like Frederick Jackson Turner and Charles Beard. A question-and-answer period and tea followed the afternoon's program.

THERESE TAYLOR TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE

Tickets are, contrary to some rumors, still available for chanteuse Marie Therese Taylor's show Thursday, Jan. 23 at the Sunset Center Auditorium, a benefit for the Monterey County Symphony Guild.

The box office at the center will be open for you late ticket buyers from 2-5 p.m. today (Thursday) and at 7 p.m. for the late-late ticket buyers.

The show promises to be quite a sparkling extravaganza according to Lee McKee, publicity person for the guild. She added that Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hunt will be flying in from Los Angeles just to take in the show, which says quite a lot for the talents of Madame Taylor, a local phenomenon. She'll be aided in her show, dubbed "Un Toast Pour Les Dames," by Steven Tosh, musical director, and John Giammona, Richard Conklin, Roy Pina, Rochelle Davis, Melisande Amos, and students of the Peninsula Ballet Center.

If you need more information call the guild at 625-1768 or 373-7955.

MISS CALIFORNIA TO ADDRESS ANNUAL PRAYER BREAKFAST

The reigning Miss California, Lisa Davenport, will be the keynote speaker for Monterey's 11th Annual Prayer Breakfast, Tuesday, Jan. 28, at the Monterey Conference Center. Ms. Davenport is a resident of Visalia, and she is presently in her junior year at Fresno State University where she is student body activities director and maintains Dean's List status.

The Prayer Breakfast, a non-denominational event, begins at 7:30 a.m. and has become a sell-out institution on the peninsula. The event is a time for prayer, reflection and thanksgiving, and provides a full program of inspirational speakers drawn totally from the lay community.

Immediately following the breakfast, there will be a program of continuing fellowship in the Steinbeck Auditorium. This program will be an open forum, and all Prayer Breakfast attendees are invited to participate.

Tickets for this morning of inspiration, music, fellowship and breakfast are $12 per person and are available from the Annual Prayer Breakfast office in the Doubletree Hotel, 375-1688, or by writing to P.O. Box 775, Monterey 93940.

CYPRESSAIRES THROW A 30TH ANNIVERSARY BASH

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., for the first time, made dual presentations of annual Barbershopper of the Year awards at their 30th anniversary party and installation banquet Jan. 11 at the Presidio of Monterey officers' club. The chapter's founder, Dr. Paul Spangler, was present along with five other charter members.

Honored as Barbershoppers of the Year were Gene Smith of Salinas, 30-year member, former music director, and outgoing program vice president; and Bob Arthur of Marina, outgoing president.

Also honored by the board of directors were Chuck and Louise Tingley of Salinas, when Arthur presented them with a special award. Tingley is the chapter's outgoing treasurer, a post he held for two years. He sustained nerve damage in an accident last July and is slowly recovering from temporary loss of motor muscles. Although he could not even sign his name for months, he continue, with Mrs. Tingley's help, to function admirably as treasurer. The Tingley's engraved plaque reads, "For exemplary service as Co-Treasurers."

The event drew 121 members, wives, and guests, including some 15 old-timers and Mrs. Ina Dow of Salinas, a judge in Sweet Adelines, a women's counterpart of the male barbershop harmony society. Several current chapter quartets performed, including one in which Tingley sings bass.

Among new officers installed were Bruce Bloxom of Carmel, who has a doctorate in psychology; and Ernie Smith of Salinas, one-time famed football player and the son of the late football Hall of Fame member Ernie Smith, Sr., of the

The Cypressaires (the name of the chapter's chorus) meet every Tuesday night from 8 to 10:30 at the American Legion Hall in Marina, 694 Legion Way. Guests are always welcome, and the chapter is anxious to make the hobby of singing barbershop harmony available to all interested men and teenage boys. FIRE LINES BY MITCH KASTROS

Care of wood-burning stoves

IN THE PAST, we have discussed the importance of keeping your fireplace and chimney clean. It is especially important to remember this if you have a wood-burning stove inserted in your fireplace.

Since the fires in these heaters burn more slowly than in a regular fireplace, the smoke travels up the chimney more slowly. The result is a more rapid buildup of creosote that, if left unattended, will reach a point where it cannot be removed by scrubbing.

This is called third-degree buildup, and the only way this can be removed is by burning it away. A professional chimney sweep can do this with a torch, which is a very involved and expensive process. However, it is better and more economical to have it removed this way than to have a chimney fire remove it.

The only way to avoid the serious problems and expense that creosote buildup from wood-burning heaters presents is to keep your heater and chimney clean. If you burn regularly, you should have your system cleaned several times a year by a licensed professional chimney sweep. He or she can tell you how often you should have your system cleaned, depending on how often you burn and what type of wood you use.

The proper installation of a new wood-burning heater is as important as keeping the system clean. It is essential that wood heaters be installed to meet the building code of the city or county. The reason for this is to protect the owner in the event of a fire resulting from improper installation. In nearly all cases, insurance companies will not cover for damage resulting from a fire due to an improperly installed heater.

By having your wood-burning stove installed up to code, either by yourself or a professional, you are insuring your protection in the case of a fire resulting from the heater. In the event of a fire, the insurance company will conduct an investigation to determine if the heater was installed up to code.

If the homeowner can prove that it was properly installed, then he or she is protected as far as insurance goes. The installer and/or the inspector will be held responsible for any problems that arise from a heater that is improperly installed, but signed off as up to code. Homeowners should keep copies of inspections that are done on the installation of their wood-burning heaters, perhaps in a safe-deposit box.

A properly installed wood heater includes an insulated sheet metal flue extending inside the chimney from the smoke vent of the heater. Depending on which code is enforced, the flue must extend a minimum height above the heater to allow the smoke to exit rapidly and completely.

If the flue is not installed with the heater, the smoke will not exit as it should, causing rapid creosote buildup in the chimney and on top of the stove. This creates problems because the buildup can clog the smoke vent, and most importantly, the deposits on the stove are in contact with intense heat. The end result can be tragic, especially with third-degree buildup.

The cost of properly installing a wood-burning heater may equal of cost of the purchase, depending on who installs it. Dealers should make people shopping for these heaters aware of the importance of proper installation, and shoppers should ask the same of dealers. If a dealer fails to mention these important cost and safety factors to you, or plays down their significance, take your business elsewhere.

If you have a wood-burning heater in your home and are concerned about its installation and cleaning, contact a licensed chimney sweep immediately.

Wood-burning heaters are an economical way to heat your home in the long run. However, there is a significant amount of initial expense needed to assure safety in their use.

C. V. Youth Center Sponsors art classes

Is your child interested in art? Would he or she enjoy an art class after school? The Carmel Valley Community Youth Center is co-sponsoring an art class with the Carmel Valley Parent's Association for third- through fifth-graders.

The class is designed to encourage the creativity of the child while teaching artistic skills. We believe that children of this age have developed the fine motor skills to be able to learn more advanced techniques while not yet possessing the over self-consciousness that stifles the adolescent's creativity.

There will be three classes meeting for two hours a week, with a maximum of 10 students in each. Two of the classes will meet from 3 to 5 p.m., one Monday and the other on Friday. The third class will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 3 to 4 p.m.

The fee is $2 per hour to cover the cost of the teacher and supplies. The classes will meet for 12 weeks, so the total fee is $22.

Registration for the art class will be from 5 to 7 p.m. in the youth center office on Thursday, Jan. 23. Sign ups are on a first-come first-served basis and the total fee will be asked at the time of registration unless arrangements are made otherwise.

The classes will be taught by Melody Ingiverson. She has taught art for many years including 10 years in a school in Colorado. She developed an expansive art program for the Colorado school from an offering of only one simple basic course. Her vast experience should lay a firm foundation for the beginning of our art program from which we can expand in the future.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

Hello again!

YOU MAY have noticed that there wasn't a Business Beat last week. You may have even noticed that my name didn't appear in the paper anywhere. If you didn't notice any of those things, well, the same to you. Anyway, I have been ill but, hopefully, I'm on my way back to recovery. Still a little shaky, but on my way. I hope anyone else out there that has had this amazing flu that is going around is feeling better. Let's all think good thoughts, o.k.?

CRAFTS AS ART

How many people dream of having a fine arts and crafts shop in Carmel? How many shops spring up only to disappear again after the dreamers find out how much work it really is?

Peggy and John Coonley, owners of Handworks on Dolores Street, know that creating a quality crafts shop takes a lot more than dreaming and good intentions. With their third shop, second in Carmel, scheduled to open the first week in February, they can say that, so far, the Coonleys have been a success.

The newest shop, which is also their biggest, is on Dolores Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues in the former location of Ellie's Hayloft. It will be a larger version of the first Handworks just down the street.

Their first shop, called Serendipity, is in Rockport, Mass., where the Coonleys currently live, and is of the same variety as the two Carmel shops. The shops represent "all media; fiber, clay, metal and wood," Peggy Coonley said.

The shops generally are considered not only a commercial but also an artistic success, and much of the credit for that can go to Peggy Coonley. As buyer and owner, Coonley explained she is like the "editor or the artist (creating the shop). Out of all the resources available (to create a shop) it is definitely that 'eye.'"

But success entails a lot more than perusing attractive hand-created works.

"It's a lot of hard work. People who want to open their own business have to be really ready for continuing responsibility and commitment," Coonley said.

The Coonleys did not start out specializing in handcrafts. "It has evolved from a small typical gift shop in Rockport to real involvement with the American crafts movement," she explained. A movement that is a bit misunderstood, she believes.

"There is a need to educate average persons that many crafts people have spent four years in college working with glass or clay, then years working with a master craftsman. It is not just a person working in the woods."

Coonley said her criteria for a crafts person is one that uses the finest materials, are really open to exploring what the elements can do and makes a personal statement.

"Artisans are risk takers. They really are here to enhance the esthetic realm in this world," Coonley said.

Coonley said that some of those esthetic risk takers find her, and some she finds through "juried" craft markets sponsored by the American Craft Council. Juried means that the entries are judged to qualify for their entry into the show. The markets are specially geared toward the craft collector,

PEGGY COONLEY will work her magic creating her new Handworks shop on Dolores Street. Coonley said she is glad she can give fine artisans a place to display their work. (Nancy Hills photo.)

Coonley explained, and take place in Baltimore, San Francisco and Springfield, Mass. Of 5,000 entries, only 800 are allowed to show, she said.

To those that believe they want to open a little arts and crafts shop, Coonley has some advice.

"You've got to know what you're doing, it is not a hobby. Do your homework! If the dream is really strong, you can make it happen," she added.

ALL SET

After nine years at Paula's Hairdressers on Seventh Avenue between Lincoln and Monte Verde streets, Paula Adamietz, hairdresser, packed her bags and left for parts known — Palm Desert. The shop, however, remained behind and is now under the guiding hand of a new owner, Shohnii Hoffman.

Hoffman herself is not a fly-by-night in the area, just dropping in because she liked the scenery. She said she has lived here for 30 years and has been a hairdresser "on and off" for the past 22 years. The "on and off" was to raise her children, Treana, 15, and Kenneth, 7, she explained.

Right now, Hoffman has only one other hairdresser working with her, Betty Gilbert, but she is looking for another. One of her problems, Hoffman said, is finding someone that knows how to set hair — you know, on rollers. The schools only teach people how to blow-dry these days, she claimed.

Some people were rather upset with Paula's abrupt departure, Hoffman said, but some stayed with her and "it's been working out really great."

THE OLD GETS A NEW

Gordon and Joan Gertz took the long way around to retirement in Carmel. They started in California, where they raised citrus trees for both wholesale and retail, then moved to Kerrville in Texas hill country to retire.

However, after seven years in Kerrville, they found the humidity a bit much, so they moved back to California, now live in Pebble Beach and have purchased Crossbow Antiques on Lincoln Street in Bonnymead Court from Margo Reynolds. Reynolds purchased the antique store a little over a year ago when she and her husband also retired here. However, family illness forced her sell the little shop.

Joan Gertz explained that they've always been interested in antiques and have collected them for years. They prefer older European and English antiques, and that is what they will emphasize in their shop.

Classes will be from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday and Thursday evenings and will run for five weeks. There is a $5 registration fee. Training will cover slow speed morse code, Federal Communications Commission Rules and Regulations and basic electronic theory.

James Porter, president of the club, said that anyone interested in obtaining an amateur radio license can attend and there is no age limit.

Porter said that anyone interested in Amateur Radio is invited to attend the monthly meeting of the club the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m., Room 400, in Spanagel Hall at the NPS.

TRIAL LAWYER TO ADDRESS COMMUNITY GROUP

Attorney Robin Hewitt of Encino will discuss "Anatomy of a Trial" as featured speaker at a meeting of the California Federation of Business and Professional Women, Peninsula District, to be held at Carmel Mission Inn, Carmel, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25.

According to program chairperson Wanda Cannon of Gilroy, the attorney will be appearing under the auspices of the Speakers Bureau of California Trial Lawyers Association, which provides speakers on a variety of legal topics to clubs and organizations at no charge.

Ms. Hewitt is a member of the board of governors of the 2,100-member Los Angeles Trial Lawyers Association.

COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS

Dr. Steve MacDonald, a chiropractor and member of the board of directors of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the Council of Monterey County Chambers of Commerce at a recent meeting.

Also elected were Vice President Russ Wolgamott, president of the Gonzales chamber; Treasurer Marabee Boone, executive vice president of the Pacific Grove chamber; and Secretary Joan Duren Pease, executive vice president of the Monterey Peninsula chamber.

The council meets regularly to discuss and act upon mutual chamber problems and exchange ideas and information.

INTERPRETING OUR HISTORY

The Jan. 6 meeting of the Carmel Women's Club was highlighted by a speech from Dr. Henry Littlefield, headmaster at York School, on the topic "Interpretation of American History," by all accounts a talk that offered new perspectives on an old subject, based on writings of great American historians like Frederick Jackson Turner and Charles Beard. A question-and-answer period and tea followed the afternoon's program.

Extensive changes made in county burn permits

There have been significant changes in the status of burning permit issuance in Monterey County.

Changes have come about due to the State Public Resources Code being amended to not require burning permits, except for agricultural burning, during the wet non-fire season and a concurrent new rule in the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District, regulations requiring permits in smoke sensitive areas on the Monterey Peninsula.

Burning permit issuance inside cities is not effected by the change in state law, but may be affected by the new district regulations. People wishing to burn inside cities should consult their city fire department.

The district rules and regulations prohibit all burning except for the following:

- Incinerators at one- or two-family dwellings where no garbage service exists. May be used all year.

- Yard prunings can be burned in all areas at one- or two-family dwellings between Jan. 1 and May 31.

- Land clearing operations can burn vegetation if no other means of disposal exist and prior approval and a permit have been obtained from the district office.

- Agricultural burning to dispose of natural agricultural waste.

- Burning to reduce a fire hazard if no other means of disposal exist and the local fire agency has designated the fire hazard.

- Campfires are permitted with the land-owners written permission.

- Large project burns for forest and rangeland management are allowed with the proper permits.

- Inside smoke sensitive areas on the Monterey Peninsula no more than 25 permits per burn day per fire jurisdiction may burn.

- Call 1-800-225-2876 to see if it is a burn day.

Fire agencies have the following requirements regarding burning inside their jurisdictions:

- Not requiring burn permits, except for agricultural and project burning, during the non-fire season will be:

- The California Department of Forestry, CDF, in all areas except the smoke sensitive areas on the Monterey Peninsula. (Phone 385-5412.)

- Salinas Rural Fire Protection District (Phone 455-1829)

Permits will be required for all burning beginning May 1, 1986.

- Requiring burning permits all year, no other restrictions will be:

- North Monterey County Fire Protection District. (Phone 633-2578)

- Aromas Tri-County Fire Protection District. (Phone 726-3130)

- Requiring permits all year and allowing no more than 25 permittees per burn day to burn will be:

- Rio Road Fire Station and Carmel Hill Forest Fire Stations, CSA 43 manned by the California Department of Forestry. (Phone 649-2920)

- Carmel Highlands Fire Protection District. (Phone 624-2374)

- Carmel Valley Fire Protection District. (Phone 659-2021)

- Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District. (Phone 624-5907)

- CDF within the Smoke Sensitive Area. (Phone 649-2920)

(The above fire agencies tracking daily burning say to date they have not seen more than 25 people per day burn with few exceptions.)

- Not allowing any burning at all will be:

- Pebble Beach Community Services District manned by the CDF. (Phone 375-4202)

SHARP SHARPWRITER ZX-515

The ZX-515 makes you rethink your ideas about what an electronic typewriter can do.

Typewriters are no longer one-dimensional tools used to improve the appearance of handwritten documents. The Sharp ZX-515 with advanced memory + editing functions, can be an integral part of an office's information flow.

Expandable memory plus text editing

The ZX-515's standard memory can store texts and phrases for easy recall at 126 locations to a maximum of 8,000 characters. It can also store 26 page formats, 10 line formats, and 10 column layouts. Internal memory can even be expanded to 40,000 characters (approximately 20 pages of text).

Text and formats in the internal memory can be edited and combined using functions like global search and replace, block move, and text linking. These functions make the ZX-515 much more than just a typewriter: it's really an information organizer. Phrases and formats can be recalled, integrated, and rearranged, making retyping of often-repeated information unnecessary.

Sequentially accessible disk drive

If you need even more memory, add an optional disk drive to the ZX-515. All information stored in the ZX-515 internal memory (up to 40,000 characters) can be recorded on one side of a 2.8" disk. Both sides of the disk may be utilized for a total of 80,000 characters per disk. Loading the contents of a disk to the ZX-515 takes only seconds.

Doubling as a computer printer

The ZX-515 has optional RS-232C serial and Centronics parallel communication interfaces, further integrating it into the modern office's information flow. Connected to a computer, the ZX-515 works as a bidirectional, letter-quality printer.

Carmel Recreation Program starts anew Feb. 3

THE SPRING session of the Carmel Recreation Program will get underway Feb. 3 with a variety of activities that promise just about something for everyone.

The program is sponsored by the City of Carmel and the Carmel Unified School District.

The winter session proved to be a success, according to Supervisor Steve Taylor.

Activities at River School served 160 children the first session and another 197 for the second session. About 75 adults participated in each session of basketball and volleyball, Taylor said.

Financially, the program will have expenditures of between $15,000 and $16,000 while about 90 percent of that will be paid back through user fees, Taylor added.

Programs at River School this session include:

- Activities camp: Designed for ages six through 12, activities camp is offered from 1 to 6 p.m. Recreation leaders provide students with supervision in sports and learning activities. Cost is $70 for 50 hours, $100 for 100 hours and $135 for 150 hours.

- The art of dance: Terri Grimshaw provides instruction in ballet, jazz and modern dance for ages six through 12. Beginners class is from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at a cost of $45. The $35 intermediate class is offered from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m. Fridays only. Sessions run from Feb. 3 to April 11 and from April 14 to June 12.

- Arts and crafts: Patricia Lightfoot instructs in the basic elements of design, line, color, form and texture for ages six through 12. Class is offered from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Two $45 sessions are open, one from Feb. 3 to April 11 and another from April 14 to June 12.

- Karate, Tang Soo Do: is offered by Mike Bissell from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Sessions at $35 each are from Feb. 3 to April 11 and from April 14 to June 12.

In addition there are volleyball and basketball programs for adults.

Basketball, which is usually quickly filled, is offered at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Carmel Middle School gym. Fee is $7.

Open volleyball is offered at 7 p.m. Mondays in the gym while a more competitive game for highly skilled spikers occurs at the same time on Wednesdays. Fee is $1 per night or $7 a session.

Two other offerings are expected to be developed in March.

One is a 12-team adult socko league and the other a tennis clinic with Andy Briant for middle-school-age students.

Registration will take place after 3 p.m. Monday through Friday at River School, southeast corner of Monte Verde Street and 15th Avenue. For additional information, call 625-2252 after 3 p.m.

MATT CRAMER and other students enjoy arts and crafts as part of the recreation program offered at River School by the city of Carmel and Carmel Unified School District.

Registration for a new session of activities for youngsters and adults now is underway. (Holly McFarland photograph.)

Youth Center sponsoring logo contest

By SUSAN BOCK

If you are a student at one of the schools in the Carmel Unified School District there is a big, big challenge just waiting for your creative genius, your vivid imagination and your most fanciful fantasies.

First you must don your most ingenious hat. Then you must roll up your sleeves in anticipation. Finally, you have to relax and let your innermost dreams run rampant with excitement as you give yourself permission to come up with the wildest most wonderful logo design possible for the Carmel Youth Center.

Not only will you win a $100 U.S. Savings Bond when you win the top prize, but more importantly, your effort will appear on everything representative of the Carmel Youth Center where a logo is needed, including being painted on all trucks and trailers used by the center now and in the future. You will create a place for yourself in history that will last forever!

All designs submitted will be posted in the youth center and there will be awarded a first, second and third prize. These winners will be published in the local paper. So read these rules carefully and get busy!

1. The contest is open to any student attending school in the Carmel Unified School District; namely, Robert Louis Stevenson, Carmel High, Carmel Middle School, Briarcliff Academy, Carmel Mission, All Saints, Captain Cooper and Tulareitos.

2. The letters CYC are to be used in the design of the logo in some fashion.

3. Entries are limited to no more than three colors.

Prizes will be awarded as follows:

First Prize: The winning logo will go on all trucks and trailers used by the center and in any other place where a logo is deemed needed or useful, a $100 U.S. Savings Bond donated by Muniz Signs in Pacific Grove, plus a one-year membership in the Carmel Youth Center.

Second Prize: A $50 U.S. Savings Bond donated by Peninsula Striping Company of Carmel, plus a one-year membership in the Carmel Youth Center.

Third Prize: A three-year membership in the Carmel Youth Center.

Judging will take place Wednesday night, Feb. 19 by the Carmel Youth Center Board of Directors with winners being announced in the Carmel Pine Cone the following week.

Let's get started so we can get those entries in by the deadline which is 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 15 at the center on Fourth and Torres in Carmel. That winner might just be you!

CHALK MARKS

And the results are in

By JAMES KOHNKE

Things have been truly busy at Tularcitos these last few months. Our enrollment is now up to 405 students, the largest our school has seen in many years. With all the students, teachers, aides and parent volunteers, the school is a beehive of activity and people.

Last week Tularcitos and Carmel High School went through the final stages of the State Coordinated Compliance Review, which took months of careful preparation by many members of our staff. The results of this important state review should be appearing in this paper, very soon. Please give it your careful attention.

One of the important curriculum areas that our staff has been working on is written language. Several of our staff members have been involved in the California Writing Project, others have attended inservices provided at our school by Lisa Meckel, mentor teacher, and other specialists in the field.

Starting second semester the fourth and fifth grades will be initiating a new program which will increase student writing and revision skills and promote greater fluency in student writing. To accomplish this goal we will be providing each of the fourth and fifth grades with an Apple IIe computer, printer, and appropriate software. This entire program, including teacher training, is funded by a state grant, AB 803, which was awarded to our school this fall.

Early this month, the fourth and fifth grade teachers, Vaughan Monnes, Paul Behan, Herb Reuter, Ethyl Radowicz, along with computer specialist/RSP teacher, Sue Best, written language specialist/-kindergarten teacher, Lisa Meckel and I attended a workshop in Danville. The workshop was given by Drs. Irene and Owen Thomas, authors of the software we have chosen for our project. It was a good experience for all of us. We gained information on the applications of the software and how it can fit into the needs of our writing program for children.

In some future article I will be giving you an update on the progress of our project. We are all very eager to see it come together.

Since 1984 our school has adopted a policy of testing all students in grade two through five each November. The instrument used is the Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skill, or CTBS test, which is a standardized test, based on the national norms.

Just before the holidays we received the results of these tests. They are, as any standardized test is, only general indicators of relative strengths and weaknesses. The results are generally quite good and this article gives us an opportunity to share them with you.

The figures you will be seeing are class averages for all students of a given grade level. The scores given will be grade equivalent scores which give an approximation of the grade level most children would have achieved in order to have displayed that particular degree of proficiency. The number 2.5 simply means second grade, fifth month.

Second grade scores — 52 second grade students tested: Total reading, 2.9, spelling, 2.3, total language, 2.7, total math, 2.6.

Third grade scores — 74 third grade students tested: Total reading, 4.0, spelling, 3.4, total language 3.8, total math, 3.4.

Fourth grade scores — 51 fourth grade students tested: Total reading, 5.8, spelling, 5.1, total language, 5.8, total math, 4.9.

Fifth grade scores — 64 fifth grade students tested: Total reading, 7.6, spelling, 6.1, total language, 7.0, total math, 5.7.

These scores speak very well of our students, teachers and program.

OBITUARIES

Charlotte Clark

Charlotte K. Clark of Carmel, well known leader in conservation, environmental and public affairs in this community, died Jan. 17 after a long illness at Carmel Convalescent Hospital.

Her husband, Dr. Howard E. Clark, former ophthalmologist of Monterey, was with her at the hospital where they had been together since February 1985 after she suffered a stroke following diagnosis of cancer in late 1984.

A long-time outstanding leader in many worthy causes concerning the environment, local government and world affairs, she was especially active in efforts to protect the natural beauty and charm of the peninsula.

In November, 1973 Mrs. Clark was honored as "Woman of the Year" by the Quota Club of Monterey-Pacific Grove, acknowledging her many contributions to the betterment of the Monterey Peninsula. She was president of several organizations, including the League of Women Voters, the local United Nations Association, the Parent-Teachers Association and the World Affairs Council.

She was also active in the Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission, the Carmel School Board, the Conservation Coordinating Council, the Carmel Area Coalition Board and the International Student Program.

She was born in Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 10, 1902. She attended Kenwood School near her Lake of the Isles home and West High School. In 1923 she graduated with honors from the University of Minnesota where her grandfather, Dr. Henry Turner Eddy, was one of the "Five Builders of the Name." She continued her post-graduate studies at Bryn Mawr for a year. In 1929 she was married in Minneapolis to Dr. Howard E. Clark, a Dartmouth graduate who subsequently earned his medical degree at the University of Minnesota.

Survivors include, with her husband Howard, their son, H. Elton Clark, Jr., of Glendale, and his wife Donna and their three children, David, Suzanne and Brian; a daughter Priscilla Becker, her husband, John P. Becker, and two daughters, Joan and Alison; her sister Marjory (Mrs. Wallace S.) Remington of Lake Hubert, Minn., and her brother, Henry E. Keyes, who lives with his wife, Pat, in Atherton.

Arrangements for cremation are being handled by The Paul Mortuary.

Friends desiring to make gifts in memory of Charlotte K. Clark may send them to the Nature Conservancy or to Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

There will be a farewell gathering from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25 at the family home at Randall Way and Fifth in Carmel.

ly home at Randall Way and Fifth in Carmel.

Charles A. Stewart

A memorial gathering, farewell party and cruise for family, friends and colleagues took place Jan. 12 aboard the Princess Monterey for Charles A. Stewart, a prominent peninsula attorney who died Jan. 8 at his home in Carmel. He was 60.

Born June 7, 1925 in San Francisco, where his family owned the Stewart Hotel off Union Square, he attended Stanford University and Hastings College of Law.

Mr. Stewart, known as Sandy, was a Navy veteran of World War II and a longtime resident of Carmel.

He was a senior partner in the Monterey law firm of Heisler, Stewart and Daniels, and was known for his advocacy of civil rights, environmental protection and world population control.

An avid skier, skin diver, hiker and naturalist, he traveled in Africa, Nepal, India and South America.

Survivors include a brother, George, of San Francisco, and three sisters, Jean Mary Wooliever, Margaret Ann Luker and Catherine Thompson, all of Carmel.

Private cremation was scheduled to take place under the direction of Mission Mortuary.

Reuel R. Sutton

Private entombment took place at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove for Reuel Robbins Sutton, a resident of Carmel for 18 years who died Jan. 9 at Carmel Valley Manor medical unit after a period of failing health. He was 79.

Born Oct. 10, 1906 in San Francisco, he graduated from Stanford University in 1927, and attended Harvard Business School, before returning to Stanford to complete law school.

Mr. Sutton, also known as Bob, practiced law in San Mateo for 30 years before retiring to Carmel. He was a past president of the San Mateo County Bar Association.

In 1930, he married Barbara Jane Averill of Portland, Ore., and they made their home in Atherton.

Upon his retirement, the couple moved to the peninsula in 1964 and lived at Hacienda Carmel. In 1977, they moved to Carmel Valley Manor. His wife, Barbara Jane, died in 1981.

Survivors include his wife, Marguerite H.; a daughter, Robin Ann of Menlo Park; a son, Reuel A. of Pacific Palisades; three grandchildren and a niece.

At his request, no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Contrary to popular opinion, scientists now believe that our greatest memory loss occurs not in old age, but between the ages of 30 and 50. The director of the Alzheimer's Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital told a symposium of the American Psychiatric Association that the latest tests indicate that our middle years are when we suffer the most significant loss in ability to learn new information and retain it for a long time. Memory impairment in old age is more likely due to illness or medication than to natural loss of memory.

If you've had problems involving the Social Security system, officials say you'll find things improving in the future. The administration is half way through a $479 million modernization program to bring the latest computer technology to the system's millions of accounts.

Remember When? 1936-The hit of Broadway season was "On Your Toes", a musical by Rodgers and Hart. Its score includes the famous ballet, "Slaughter On Tenth Avenue"

REMEMBER WHEN????

65 years ago

from the Carmel Pine Cone
Jan. 20, 1921

THE OFFICIAL NAME IS POINT CARMEL

In order to expedite a discussion which had arisen regarding the official name of the picturesque cape which marks the southwest point of Carmel Bay, a member of the Pine Cone staff visited the office of the Coast and Geodetic Survey in San Francisco. There it was learned from official charts, one of which is now on exhibition in the Pine Cone office, that the official name of that locality is Point Carmel.

On page 77 of the United States Coast Pilot, published in 1917, at the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., is printed, "Point Carmel, the southern point at the entrance to Carmel Bay, is an irregular, jagged, rock point, 100 feet high."

Davidson's Coast Pilot published in 1889, also gives the name as Point Carmel, and in a footnote states that it was once, locally, known to whalers as Point Lobos.

The southern point of the Golden Gate, at the entrance to San Francisco Bay, is officially designated Point Lobos.

SNACK REFUSED PERMISSION TO SHIFT LICENSE

Fate of "The Snack," only saloon of Carmel's history, became an open civic issue at the council meeting Wednesday evening, when Mrs. R.H. Bramer, who recently became the wife of the proprietor, appeared in person to ask for the transfer of the restaurant license issued for the place from her husband to herself. Her request was denied. A goodly number of citizens were present, many of whom had been carrying on an active campaign to make effective the growing sentiment against on-sale liquor establishments in Carmel.

Petitions have been circulated, following the mandatory closing of The Snack last week, after it was discovered that the state liquor license was illegally held by a man who was not a citizen of the United States. That action was taken by the State Board of Equalization.

TOP GOLFERS, ENTERTAINERS TEE OFF TODAY

FOR BING'S 4-DAY CLAMBAKE

With 300 of the best professional and amateur golfers in the business spraying shots over the three golf courses in the Del Monte Forest, the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur golf tournament gets underway today and runs for four days until the big wind-up at Pebble Beach on Sunday.

Ken Venturi, winner of last year's Crosby, has been on the peninsula for the past week preparing to make a successful defense of his crown.

While golf is the name of the game, galleryites need not be familiar with the links sport to enjoy themselves at the Crosby Clambake. From the entertainment field, taking their swings for charity and trying to help their pro partners, are Jim Garner, Tennessee Ernie Ford, George Gobel, Guy Madison, Richard Arlen, Phil Harris, Gordon MacRae, Fred MacMurray, Buddy Rogers, Johnny Weissmuller and Dennis O'Keefe.

BEACHED SEA LIONS SHOULD BE LEFT ALONE

A young sea lion crawled up on Carmel Beach a few weeks ago and a man who happened to be passing by reached down to pet it. He almost had his hand bitten.

But usually the dangers of a seal or sea lion beaching are experienced by the animal itself.

Beached marine mammals, which come out of the ocean because they are sick, are attacked by dogs, frightened by curious onlookers, stoned by malicious children, and even occasionally shot by well-meaning animal lovers who seek to put them out of their misery.

By law, marine mammals along the Pacific coast — including sea otters, sea lions and harbor seals — are fully protected under the Federal Marine Mammal Act. It is illegal for any but an authorized person to so much as touch them.

RESIDENTS CLAIM LOW BLOW BY COUNTY IN ROBINSON CANYON ROAD DECISION

Residents along Center Street in Carmel Valley may become the lambs that Monterey County sacrificed to the traffic control lion of the year.

The lambs, however, are not going without a fight.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors decided last week that to avoid an "urban-type" intersection at Robinson Canyon and Carmel Valley roads, little-used, dead-end Center Street should become a major thoroughfare.

At issue is how to accommodate heavy traffic expected from the nearby planned 500-unit Carmel Valley Ranch development on Robinson Canyon Road.

The county and the ranch developer have batted around two major ideas — an underpass or a signal at the intersection — but in December the supervisors decided both were unacceptable urban solutions and they turned their sights on expanding Center Street.

Quick-thinking police nab auto theft suspects

THE BREAKUP of a major car burglary ring in Carmel this week sends a clear warning to residents not to leave their automobiles unlocked at any time.

According to Carmel Police Sgt. Ken O'Donovan, three Ft. Ord Army privates

allegedly confessed to stealing more than 500 items from unlocked cars in the Carmel area over the past month.

All of the items taken were removed from vehicles which were not locked, O'Donovan said the suspects told him.

Arraigned on Tuesday in Monterey Municipal Court are Jeffrey Wray, Elvie Breeding and Raymond Critchley, all of Ft. Ord.

Breeding and Critchley were arraigned on multiple burglary counts and possession of stolen property while Wray is charged with possession of stolen property.

O'Donovan reported that if it had not been for a quick-thinking officer and a missed stop sign, the ring, which has plagued the Carmel area for several weeks, still would not have been broken.

According to the police report, Officer Robbie Wiese was on routine patrol early Sunday morning when she noticed a suspicious vehicle cruising the residential district.

Wiese followed the vehicle for a while, which attempted evasive action and the officer actually lost the car for a few moments. When she caught up to it again, the car allegedly ran a stop sign and Wiese turned on the red lights, O'Donovan said.

When questioning the driver Wiese noticed stereo equipment in the vehicle and the three men started to confess. They offered her no resistance as Weiss made the arrest, O'Donovan reported.

The three reportedly confessed again after further questioning by police.

Police were led to a Marina self-storage locker where the allegedly stolen merchandise was found. In addition, some stolen items were found in barracks at Ft. Ord.

O'Donovan expects to uncover more stolen merchandise upon further investigation and that there is the possibility of additional arrests.

Police have not found any signs of a fencing operation as part of the investigation, he said.

"At this point we don't think anything was fenced off except maybe to friends," O'Donovan believes.

O'Donovan said the rash of car burglaries had been under investigation for several weeks and police had questioned numerous suspects. But the Ft. Ord men were new suspects in the case.

"These guys were completely new. If Robbie didn't get them we probably wouldn't have gotten them," O'Donovan said.

License plate renewal amnesty

Motorists who use vehicles with outdated license plate stickers can beat the stiff penalties in store for them by acting during a three-month amnesty set in motion by the California Legislature, according to Department of Motor Vehicles Director George E. Meese.

During the three months — Jan. 1 through March 31, 1986 — motorists can pay delinquent license plate renewal fees to DMV without penalties. After the amnesty ends, penalties of 20, 40 and 80 percent will be added to the basic fees due, depending on how far behind the registration has fallen.

Persons using unregistered vehicles will face mandatory fines of $50 to $250. Vehicles can be impounded, and their owners will have to pay towing and storage charges. DMV can sell a delinquent vehicle for fees.

"Probably nothing generates more angry letters to me," said Meese, "than a vehicle seen driven, or parked in a shopping mall, with an expired license plate sticker. 'I pay my fees,' these letters say, 'how come this guy gets away with not paying?'"

"That's why Assemblyman Gray Davis introduced, and Gov. Deukmejian signed, a law to give vehicle owners a last chance to become legal again. This last chance expires when the amnesty ends on March 31."

Meese said the amnesty covers any vehicle license plate fee which was due for a vehicle before March 1, 1985. If fees became due on or after that date, neither the fees nor the penalties can be forgiven. However, no penalties will be charged for the current year if fees due before March 1, 1985 are also being paid at the same time.

Premier clarinetist appears with county symphony

DAVID SHIFRIN, celebrating his eighth season as principal clarinetist and soloist with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra, will perform with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra during its Sunday through Tuesday concert series.

Clark E. Suttle, music director and conductor, will lead the concerts set in Monterey, Carmel and Salinas.

Shifrin will perform Mozart's Clarinet

ARTS & LEISURE

Concerto in A major, K. 622. The symphony string section will be featured during Vaughn Williams' Fantasia on a Theme of Thomas Tallis. The piece was composed in 1910 and calls for two string orchestras and a solo string quartet. The effect is polychoral, as though two choirs are singing from different parts of a cathedral.

In addition to his position as principal clarinet of the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra, Shifrin makes guest appearances in New York City's major concert halls, and with such orchestras as the Pittsburgh Symphony, Philadelphia Orchestra, the Berlin and Bavarian radio orchestras and l'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande.

Last summer the artist was a featured guest of the Mostly Mozart Festival in its series at Kennedy Center.

As a chamber musician, Shifrin often performs with the Guarneri and Tokyo quartets and with the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center. He is currently the music director of Chamber Music Northwest, the chamber music festival in Portland, Ore.

He has served on the faculties of the University of Hawaii, the Cleveland Institute of Music, the Blossom Festival School at Kent State University, and the University of Michigan and is currently professor at the University of Southern California.

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra will dedicate its performance of Debussy's La Mer to the Monterey County Symphony Guild on the occasion of the guild's 30th anniversary.

The Sunday, Jan. 26 concert will be performed at King Hall, the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey. The Monday, Jan. 27 concert will be presented at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel; and on Tuesday, Jan. 28 at Sherwood Hall, 914 N. Main St., Salinas. The concerts begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the King Hall performance are $10 for adults, $5 students, $6 enlisted military, $4.50 unreserved and are available at Abinante Music Store, Monterey and at Do Re Mi in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

Tickets for the Sherwood Hall concert may be purchased at Gadsby's Music in Old Town Salinas and at the Salinas Community Center

Box Office. Prices are $9.50 for adults, $5 students, $4.50 unreserved orchestra and $4 unreserved balcony.

Tickets for the Sunset Center performance are available in the symphony office at the center. Prices in Carmel are $10, $11 and $12. Tickets may also be purchased at the box office on concert nights.

For more information, call 624-8511 or 758-3594.

phony Orchestra in its series scheduled Sunday through Tuesday, Jan. 26-28. For ticket information, call 624-8511 or 758-3594.

Valery Lloyd-Watts will perform Friday in Carmel

At 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24, Canadian pianist Valery Lloyd-Watts will appear in a recital in Carmel's Sunset Theater under the auspices of Bronson Concerts.

Born in Vancouver and a graduate of the Royal College of Music and the Royal Academy of Music in London, Lloyd-Watts has studied with Paul Badura-Skoda, Rosalyn Tureck, Menahem Pressler, Lili Kraus and Gunnar Johansson.

Lloyd-Watts has an unusual performance style, as she chats with audiences during her recitals about the music she is about to play. As testament to her popularity the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation asked her to appear in a 13-part television series called "Music Meant for You" showing her gift for making music accessible to people of all ages. This series won several awards and has been shown in Canada, England, Australia and New Zealand.

Her program in Carmel will include compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, Faure and Rachmaninoff. Tickets range in price from $4 to $10 and are available at Abinante Music in Monterey; Do Re Mi in The Barnyard, Carmel; Baldwin Music Center in

Pacific Grove and at the box office on the evening of the performance. For further information call 625-0797.

CANADIAN PIANIST Valery Lloyd-Watts will perform Friday, Jan. 24 in a recital at Sunset Theater, Carmel. Her performance is presented under the auspices of Bronson Concerts. For ticket information, call 625-0797.

THE PAUL Anka benefit concert scheduled Saturday, Jan. 25 is reportedly sold out. All proceeds from the 8 p.m. show, to be followed by a post-performance dinner dance, will benefit Santa Catalina School in Monterey. For further information, call 649-1432.

Paul Anka show sells out

Tickets are sold out for the benefit concert to be presented by singer-songwriter Paul Anka at Santa Catalina School in Monterey.

Anka will be joined by his 16-piece band from Las Vegas during the Saturday, Jan. 25 concert in the Performing Arts Center at Santa Catalina.

Complimentary wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served at 7 p.m., and a no-host bar will be open. The concert is set to start at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the wine reception and concert are $75 per person. Sponsor tickets, which include the wine reception, concert and the post-performance dinner dance are priced at $175 per person.

Co-chairmen for the event are Anne Anka and Laurie Hall.

For more information, call Santa Catalina School, 649-1432.

Kipnis concerts conclude tonight in Monterey

THE FINAL concert in a series featuring Igor Kipnis and the Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23 at King Hall in Monterey.

Oleg Kovalenko, music director, will conduct the concert, which will include J.S. Bach's Concerto in D minor for Harpsichord and Orchestra, the Concert Champetre for Harpsichord and Orchestra of Francis Poulenc and Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor, Op. 67.

In addition to his concerts with the Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra, Kipnis presented two recitals geared especially to young listeners and their families.

Kipnis participated in the triple composers' tercentenary celebration at the Carmel Bach Festival last year. The son of the late Metropolitan Opera bass, Alexander Kipnis, Igor Kipnis made his debut as an instrumentalist in 1959.

With 65 LPs to his credit, Kipnis has received six Grammy nominations and three "Record of the Year" awards. He is a contributing editor to Opus, has served as a critic for Stereo Review and American Record Guide, and has edited a music anthology, A First Harpsichord Book, for Oxford University Press.

Kipnis' harpsichord repertoire encompasses not only the traditional works of 17th and 18th century composers, but also in-

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION BY JANE WILGRESS

Magic dulcimer tonight!

THIS EVENING, Thursday, Jan. 23, brings the return of folk musicians Rick and Lorraine Lee for a concert in Cherry Hall starting at 8 p.m. At the time of writing, space is still available for this event — but please call us fast at 624-7491 for reservations.

1986 is the fourth year in which we have been privileged to have the Lees here, and it is good fortune for audiences that they like the Cherry Foundation for they are folk musicians par excellence on dulcimer, keyboard and banjo, with a special kind of scholarly zest for their material. They sing songs from Europe and the British Isles — where they have toured extensively — as well as many from rural America in addition to their own compositions. The obvious relish they have for their songs, whether humorous or tender, is always conveyed to their audiences so that a particularly happy kind of rapport pervades in Cherry Hall.

In 1984 Lorraine Lee gave me a copy of her book, The Magic Dulcimer and, while I am no musician or expert on folk music, I enjoy reading it as one can always enjoy learning from an expert writing on his or her subject. Woodblock illustrations add much charm to the book. I have been especially intrigued by Lorraine's ingenious "strum practice" technique, using telephone numbers translated, as she says, into "fret numbers with a rhythmic value of one strum." Phone numbers, she continues, can be adapted to waltz time and "soon you can move on to addresses and social security numbers — and even find yourself writing original tunes disguised as zip codes!"

The book includes many charming songs arranged for Appalachian dulcimer, such as "Down in yon Forest," "Scarborough Fair," Orlando Gibbons' "Silver Swan," two touching Shaker songs and many more.

Tickets available for golf tourney

A variety of ticket packages are available for the inaugural AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, formerly the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The $650,000 tournament will be played Jan. 30 through Feb. 2, with practice rounds Jan. 27-29, at Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill golf courses.

A roster of celebrities is expected to turn out for the tournament, among them Clint Eastwood, George C. Scott, Jack Lemmon, James Garner and Glen Campbell.

Adding a "Crosby touch" to the AT&T are Nathaniel Crosby, who will be playing as a professional, and his brother Harry, playing as an amateur.

The winning pro will receive $108,000 in prize money. Another $50,000 will go to the top professional finishers in the pro-am. Six low-scoring amateurs will be awarded Waterford crystal.

A sidelight to the regular tournament will be the "Shoot-Out at Pebble Beach" Jan. 28, sponsored by 3M.

This year six touring professionals will be invited to play five holes at Pebble Beach — the first, second, third, 17th and 18th. One player is eliminated after each hole until there is a winner at the 18th. Last year's "Shoot-Out" champion was Lee Trevino.

Among the ticket packages available for advance purchase are:

• The grounds and grandstand badge is $80. In addition to season badge privileges, this badge entitles the holder to a grandstand seat at the 18th green at Pebble Beach. Grandstand seats are limited and will be allocated strictly on receipt of application.

Discourage this unwanted guest. Routine use of medicated powders, sprays and shampoos will help, but you must deflea both your pet and your home, or the fleas will keep coming back. Auditions planned for Bach Festival Chorus

Auditions for the 1986 Carmel Bach Festival Chorus will take place 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8 in Fellowship Hall, Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel.

Priscilla Salgo, director of the Festival Chorale, will conduct the auditions. Appointments are needed for auditions and can be made by calling the festival office on weekdays at 624-1521.

During the course of the festival, the chorus performs many of the major choral works. This year these works include cantata 140 and The Passion According to St. John.

The 43-member chorus begins rehearsals in March under the direction of Ken Ahrens, assistant choral director. Ahrens is the administrative assistant for the festival and has served as festival organist, chorus director and librarian for the past 24 years.

The 49th season of the Carmel Bach Festival will take place July 15 through Aug. 4.

Students who register late must obtain add labels from the instructors of the classes they wish to take. Regular Admissions and Records Office hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Fridays.

Answer to last week's puzzle

a modern fairy tale with a happy ending for everyone from The Grand Hotel On The Bay

nce upon a time the High Tea was thought of as an unmanly indulgence of the British Aristocracy, that caused receding chins. Thankfully we now live in a more enlightened era.
Every afternoon at 4:00 a magnificent silver tea cart is carefully rolled into the Lobby Bar of the Monterey Plaza. It is surrounded by an exquisite assortment of tea sandwiches, French pastries, exotic teas and infusions.
Of course for those of you who still think of tea as unmanly, we serve port, champagne, even Wild Turkey by the glass. The price is less than you think and it may be your chance to live happily ever after. After all it won't cost you a thing to come take a look.
You see it always pays to read the fine print.

AAA diagnostic van tests vehicles

The California State Automobile Association's Auto Diagnostic Van will be in Monterey from Monday, Jan. 27 to Feb. 7, offering AAA members over 60 separate checks of their cars' engines and components, an under-the-hood exam and a fuel economy test.

The Auto Diagnostic Van will be at the CSAA Monterey office, 53 Soledad Drive, Monterey, on an appointment-only basis. Members can call 373-3021 to reserve a time for diagnosis of their cars.

The CSAA Auto Diagnostic Vans will also be at CSAA offices in Watsonville until Jan. 24 and Salinas Feb. 17-21.

The CSAA Auto diagnosis is unbiased, since CSAA performs no repairs or adjustments. With the car's diagnosis, each motorist receives a detailed written report which can be taken to any mechanic if corrections are advised.

Included in the "under-the-hood" portion of the auto diagnosis are checks of the batteries and cables, belt and hoses and fluid levels. An infrared test of exhaust gases at the tail pipe provides a fuel economy evaluation. A safety check of the lights and tires completes the $30 diagnosis.

Hidden Valley adds Carmel classes to dance program

Hidden Valley has expanded its dance program by offering dance classes for the first time in Carmel. Enrollment and instruction began Jan. 20 and will be ongoing.

Hidden Valley instructors, under the artistic direction of John Pasqualetti, are teaching ballet classes for adults and children (ages four and up), jazz (for adults and teens), dance exercise for adults, and a senior citizens dance class.

The Carmel Ballet Academy, Mission and Eighth, is the location chosen for the classes. All classes currently taught at Hidden Valley's Carmel Valley campus are continuing as well.

For further information, contact Hidden Valley's Dance Coordinator, Meryl Robertson, 659-3115.

MUSIC CORNER

BY JO ANN LA TORRA

Congenial Kipnis

IGOR KIPNIS dominated music on the peninsula last week, starting with a solo recital on Friday, a rug concert Saturday and appearances with the Monterey Bay Symphony on Sunday, Monday and tonight (Thursday).

If the world's harpsichordists were lined up and judged like Miss Americas, Kipnis might not be Mr./Ms./Dr.

Harpsichord, but he probably would win the congeniality award.

Friday's recital at Santa Catalina School's Performing Arts Center, a less-than-intimate hall, was a benefit for the Monterey Bay Symphony. Truly, it was more of a pro-seminar on the harpsichord than a recital, in the generally accepted sense of the word. It is hard to believe that the harpsichord is still so unknown as to require detailed explanation, but perhaps it is. In any case, Kipnis has the ability to impart quite elementary information without talking down to his audience.

His format was to choose some of the harpsichord's greatest hits, from My Lady Carey's Dompe (anonymous, mid-16th century) to Mozart's Turkish March (18th century). Along the way, he provided information about the instrument and its development, as well as some background on the music. Kipnis is a good showman, and it was entertaining as well as informative.

The second half was devoted to harpsichord music of the later 19th and 20th centuries, including some jazz arrangements about whose suitability to the harpsichord there is not total agreement.

BACH, BEETHOVEN and Poulenc provided the fare for the Monterey Bay Symphony's series which concludes tonight at King Hall in Monterey.

The charming, witty Poulenc Concert champetre for harpsichord and orchestra was an excellent choice.

Some listeners may have been surprised at modern (well...1928) music for this relatively old instrument. This concerto was one of several commissioned by Wanda Landowska, the list of which includes the more frequently heard works by Frank Martin and Manuel de Falla. More recently, the harpsichord has really begun to fascinate composers once again, and the catalog of new works is immense.

Poulenc is not so popular now as he was a generation ago, but there are some of his works that deserve to stay in the repertoire, and this is one of them. The writing for the harpsichord is not always idiomatic — large, chunky chords are not ideal — but in general it is effective.

It is structured along 18th century lines, in three contrasting movements, with a slow introduction. The impact of the piece lies primarily in the interplay between soloist and orchestra. Kipnis played it with flair and the orchestra matched it for a good collaboration.

The encore, an obscure Prokofiev piece, did nothing to enhance Prokofiev's reputation.

Some concert-goers groan when they see the Fifth Beethoven on a program, but not so here. I can count on the fingers of one hand the number of times I have heard it live, so assiduously do conductors tend to avoid it. An old warhorse it may be, but for the best of all reasons: it is a great piece.

Kovalenko gave it a strong, masculine reading, emphasizing its dynamic character and broad lines. In spite of the acoustics at Sunset Theater, the fortissimos were full and ringing, although they undoubtedly rang more in the other locales.

He mercifully did not drag the second movement, a temptation to any conductor. I recall a conducting teacher once telling us that if you could conduct a Beethoven second movement, you could conduct anything. Part of the difficulty, particularly here, is treading the fine line between romanticism and classicism. There are many 18th century traits in this movement, but to make too much of them would be fatal, with the impact of the opening movement still in mind.

The finale was forceful, and built to an exciting close.

Overall, it was a quite satisfactory performance. Details got away here and there: the opening of the third movement, especially, was murky and imprecise (on Sunday); on the other hand, the transition to the finale was lovely.

The evening opened with the D minor harpsichord concerto by Sebastian Bach.

Intonation was somewhat improved in this concert, although unisons in the Bach were not clean and the brass players in the Beethoven did not always agree on pitches.

Usually reliable sources tell me that the organ concert at First United Methodist Church in Pacific Grove, by Thomas Hazleton, was very successful, including the almost obligatory standing ovation. A prior commitment kept me from it, but this is an interesting series and all organ buffs will want to check it out. The "Butterfly" church has one of the very few good organs on the peninsula.

Carmel Bach Festival seeks housing

With costs rising for housing musicians during their five-week stay in Carmel, the Carmel Bach Festival is in need of donated housing from approximately June 27 through Aug. 3.

Most housing must be within reasonable distance to the Sunset Center as the majority of musicians are from out of town and have no transportation.

The Carmel Bach Festival musicians are hand-picked by Music Director Sandor Salgo. The festival consists of more than 50 orchestra members, 32 soloists and approximately 40 chorale members. This group of out of town musicians gathers exclusively for the festival.

For further information call the Carmel Bach Festival office at 624-1521.

Winery Notes

MORGAN — ST. VRAIN

By Helga Fellay

If you expect to taste Morgan-St. Vrain's award-winning Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc in a quaint, rustic tasting room — forget it. Hidden in an unpretentious building in an industrial complex off Abbott Street in Salinas, Morgan-St. Vrain does not even look like a winery from the outside. Inside, however, you will find the most immaculate and efficiently run small winery one can expect to find anywhere. "We are a production-oriented state-of-the-art winery, concentrating on making the best wine we can, and the facility kind of reflects this," says winemaker Dan Lee. Formerly with Jekel and then Durney, Dan in 1982 founded his own winery with partner Donna George. Winning numerous Gold Medals for both its Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc, the winery has been very successful from the start — "sometimes too successful," says Dan, who has at times had difficulty supplying ever-growing demands. His original intention was to remain a "small premium Chardonnay producer." According to Dan, "this area has great potential, and a lot of other wineries have grown too quickly. That's when quality suffers. I wanted to be the person to do the small, quality job with Chardonnay, and put Monterey Chardonnay on the map." In the opinion of at least one fellow vintner, he has succeeded: "Of all the winemakers locally, he has done better with white wines than any other. His wines are all very clean, very correct."

Like so many of his fellow vintners, Dan started out in a different field. As a pre-med student at U.C. Davis, he took some classes in Enology (winemaking). Coming from a small agricultural town in the Central Valley, and with an interest in science, Dan had found what he really wanted: a field that was related to both agriculture and science, but with a third, as-yet-unknown entity which left it wide open for the creative. "The combination of the three appealed to me more than doing research in a lab eight hours a day," he now states happily. "Once I took a couple of classes in Enology, I was hooked. It was not only the classes, but also the wide range of people involved: doctors, lawyers, people disillusioned from previous professions and still searching, along with foreign students — a small, worldly group — I enjoyed it very much."

It is also through his involvement with the wine industry that he in 1980 met his business partner — and soon to be life partner — Donna George at a wine growers' function. A vice president at Wells Fargo Bank's Central Coast Business Center, Donna now assists in the winery evenings and weekends.

Dan is not afraid of innovation: he started barrel fermentation of Chardonnay at a time when this was very new for the California wine industry. With pride he points out that the winery purchases 40 to 50 percent of new oak barrels every year, does no barrel shawing, and that none of the barrels are more than two years old. This, and the latest in stainless steel, filters and pumps, make it a "state-of-the-art" winery, "although," Dan is quick to point out, "the wine basically makes itself. We just kind of watch and guide it in the right directions." He sees himself as a caretaker of the wine, and one of his prime tasks is selecting the right vineyards that produce high quality grapes. "The wine is really a direct result of the fruit quality. All I do is add my 'spice rack things' — what I use in molding the fruit into wine: oak from the barrels, yeast, and malo-lactic fermentation."

Tours of this remarkable winery and tastings of these outstanding, award-winning wines can be arranged by appointment: (408) 455-1382.

Back to the Future: A Steven Spielberg production about a man tossed back in time who meets his parents before he is born. Only one person can help him get back to the present. Co-stars include Christopher Lloyd and Michael J. Fox. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

A Chorus Line: The long-running Broadway musical, directed for the movies by Richard Attenborough. Rated PG-13. At Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

The Color Purple: Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel is brought to the screen by Steven Spielberg. Whoopi Goldberg and Danny Glover co-star. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Enemy Mine: Louis Gossett Jr. and Dennis Quaid co-star in this drama of alien friendships set against a science-fiction fantasy background. Rated PG-13. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

Iron Eagle: A teenaged pilot rescues his father from terrorists by commandeering an F-16 fighter in this adventure thriller. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Jewel of the Nile: The sequel to Romancing the Stone follows

Jack Colton (Michael Douglas) and Joan Wilder (Kathleen Turner) on a perilous trek into the deserts of North Africa. Their hot-tempered arch-enemy, Ralph (Danny DeVito) is still dogging their trail. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70. 373-4777.

My Chauffeur: Deborah Foreman stars in this comedy about a female driver at a formerly all-male limousine company. Sam J. Jones portrays the boss's son. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Out of Africa: Isak Dinesen's writings about her life in Kenya in the early 1900s inspired this film with Robert Redford and Meryl Streep. At the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music, "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Runaway Train: Jon Voight and

Eric Roberts portray escaped convicts who are trapped along with their hostage, Rebecca DeMornay, on a runaway train. Andrei Konchalovsky directs. Rated R. Ends Jan. 23 at the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Spies Like Us: Chevy Chase and Dan Aykroyd co-star in this comedy about inept espionage agents. Rated PG. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

Troll: In this horror fantasy film an evil troll seeks to overcome the entire human world. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

White Nights: Mikhail Baryshnikov portrays a Russian ballet dancer who defects to the United States. Seven years later, caught in a plane crash in the U.S.S.R., he persuades an expatriate American tap dancer (Gregory Hines) to help him escape. Rated PG-13. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

MPC study tour travels to Mexico

Students will visit the ruins of Palenque and Chichen Itza plus the pyramids of Teotihuacan and Monte Alban during a 10-day field study of the art, history, architecture and culture of the ancient civilizations of Mexico offered by Monterey Peninsula College.

The study tour, scheduled for March 22 to 31, makes up the curriculum of Anthropology 199, with the first class meeting from 6 to 9 p.m. Feb. 14 in Room 205 of the Social Sciences building on campus. Students will receive three semester credits for tour participation.

Tour highlights will include visits to some of the most significant remains of the ancient civilizations of the Olmecs, Toltecs, Mixtecs, Zapotecs, Maya and Aztecs in Mexico. Participants will also visit the Anthropology Museum in Mexico City, Indian markets and other cultural and historical sites.

The Chichen Itza students will see such ruins as the Plaza of the Thousand Columns; the circular Caracol, from which important astronomical observations have been made; and the palatial El Castillo Pyramid.

Mexico tour cost is $1,095 per person, double occupancy. A deposit of $210 is due with enrollment, with the balance due on Feb. 20.

Josef Gamper, Ph.D., professor of anthropology at MPC, and a former student of Mesoamerican Archaeology at U.C. Berkeley, will direct the tour.

Four class lectures are scheduled in the weeks preceding the tour with one post-tour lecture scheduled in April. Lectures will also be held at various times throughout the tour.

For those students who seek additional preparation for the trip, a full-semester course, "Ancient Cultures of Mexico and Central America" (Anthropology 121) will be offered this spring, beginning the week of Feb. 3. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., or for those who cannot attend daytime classes, on Wednesdays from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Further information is available from MPC's Community Services Office, 646-4051, or the MPC Anthropology Department, 646-4161.

WRITER, PAINTER and "inveterate student," Carmel artist Betty Barron presents a one-woman show of her oil paintings in the Sunset Theater foyer. The exhibit remains up through the end of the month. (Photograph by Anne Papineau.)

Exhibit continues at Sunset

Travels inspire her designs

By ANNE PAPINEAU

BETTY BARRON came to Carmel with the '49ers.

Okay, she isn't part of a football team and she's certainly not one of those latter-century goldseekers, but as a Carmel resident for nearly 36 years — since autumn 1949 — Barron qualifies as a Carmel resident of noteworthy duration.

Barron, who calls herself "an inveterate student," is also a veteran world traveler and boasts a writing career so diverse she has put typewriter to paper for radio stations, newspapers and airlines. She even penned speeches for the chancellor of UCLA.

"He was an ex-Minnesotan like myself," Barron recalled from her sun-struck garden. "I did everything involving writing."

In recent years paint has competed with ink and airwaves as Barron's chief medium of expression. A collection of her recent oil paintings, titled "Castles and Cathedrals ... Missions, Mosques and Minarets," can be viewed through the end of the month in the foyer at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Barron's globe-hopping show includes views of The Romance Road in Germany, Piazza San Marco in Venice, Windsor Castle in England and apple and plum blossoms in Carmel Valley.

Literature and music have long touched the life of this Carmel artist. Barron was born on the Mississippi, in Wabasha, Minn. The town is situated in the Hiawatha Valley immortalized by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

"My mother was a music and art teacher," Barron noted. "I never did any painting while she was living. When she died — I started up. I don't know why. Maybe it was living in Carmel. I couldn't resist, and I've been painting for 21 years."

At the University of Minnesota, Barron pursued her bachelor's degree in both English history and journalism. World War II was still raging when Barron moved to San Francisco and took a job as a newscaster with the U.S. Office of War Information.

"I met correspondents from around the world. They were all men at that time," she recalled. "We took news off the wire services and then it was beamed to occupied southeast Asia. We occasionally got a direct communique. It was propaganda in a way, designed to encourage people in the occupied countries not to give up."

"I worked on the English newscast. There were also telecasts in Chinese and Japanese. I still remember we worked out of the building at 111 Sutter St."

Among Barron's other early jobs were working at a print advertising agency in Los Angeles and heading a radio "wake-up" show in Minnesota.

"It was called 'Dayton's Musical Chimes' and was basically advertising for a store," she said.

"I liked Carmel then and I like it now. I sometimes think there's an awful lot of traffic. But I love talking to people from other parts of the world."

It wasn't until Barron married attorney Gerald Barron that she discovered Carmel and its artists'/writers' wellspring.

"My husband was offered a position in the district attorney's office in Salinas. We'd visited Carmel, liked it and grabbed the job. Our daughter was born two weeks after we arrived at what is now Carmel Convalescent Hospital."

Barron can speak nostalgically about Carmel in the '40s and '50s, but she says she is equally fond of the Carmel of today.

"We had small children then and enjoyed beach picnics. I liked Carmel then and I like it now. I sometimes think there's an awful lot of traffic. But I love talking to people from other parts of the world. I've liked all the changes."

Barron began painting, she explained, about 1965. She studied oil painting at Studio 15 in Sunset Center with the late Jack Laycox.

"Jack influenced me more than anybody," Barron said. "He was an extremely kind and sensitive man. I think he had enormous insight. He could create something out of almost nothing. Sometimes he would use a photograph or make a rough sketch on a little three-by-five piece of paper, then start to work on the canvas.

"He was very encouraging," she added. "Both he and his late wife, Jane, were wonderful people."

At one point, Barron observed, she painted about four hours daily. She now works "three days a week at least four hours. On Sunday I try to paint, also."

For three decades an avowed travel bug, Barron often turns to foreign sites for subject matter.

"I've gone through the acrylic phase, now I work in oils," she explained. "I travel every chance I get. I tried painting in Paris, but with so many people standing around — it bothered me. Some seemed to think I was some world-famous artist and others made some critical comments."

Painting, Barron said, she reserves for her studio at home. But she will often photograph some international setting and attempt to capture its spirit later, on canvas.

"I like Bangkok very much. I visit London and Paris quite often."

Barron explained that for several years she has exchanged her Carmel home with those of persons in other countries. Her travels and home exchanges prompted Barron to consider starting an international network of "informal diplomats."

"Perhaps the average citizens in each country could accomplish things our so-called diplomats, leaders and media can't. If we could just exchange our ideas with each other by letter, we could find answers to world problems."

The artist has never turned her back on her multi-faceted writing background. While raising her son and daughter, Barron found time to report society news for a variety of local publications. Her travel writings are frequently published in a cross-section of journals, and Barron is even penning her life story for the benefit of her grandchildren.

Betty Barron is a decidedly positive person. "This year I'm going to travel far," she volunteered. "I constantly read in different areas. There are so many things I haven't touched upon and it bothers me."

In addition to her show at Sunset Theater, Barron's paintings can be viewed at the Calle Court Gallery in Monterey.

CITY COUNCIL CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 86-1 AN ORDINANCE REGULATING THE PLACEMENT OF NEWSRACKS IN PUBLIC RIGHT OF WAY

Section 1. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, finds and declares that the uncontrolled placement and maintenance of newsracks in the public right of way creates physical danger to the traveling public, and the numerous pedestrians that use the public rights of way in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Moreover, the City Council finds that in recognition of the unique architectural features and basic heritage of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, the clutter and congestion of numerous disparate types of newsracks in the public rights of way is unsightly and not in keeping with the rustic nature of the village. The City Council also finds, however, that the use of such rights of way is so historically associated with the sale and distribution of newspapers and publications, that access to these areas for such purposes should not be absolutely denied. The City Council further finds that the public interest requires that newsrack facilities of uniform and coordinated construction and appearance be utilized, and that these strong and competing interests require a reasonable accommodation which can only be satisfactorily achieved through the means of this Ordinance, designed to accommodate such interests by regulating the time, place and manner of using such newsracks.

Section 2. In this Ordinance, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires:

"Newsrack" shall mean any self-service or coin operated box, container, storage unit or other dispenser installed, used or maintained for the sale of newspapers, news periodicals, or other news publications.

"Highway" shall mean all that area dedicated to public use for public street purposes and shall include, but not be limited to, roadways, parkways, alleys and sidewalks.

"Roadway" shall mean that portion of the street improved, designed or ordinarily used for vehicular travel.

"Parkway" shall mean that area between the edge of the roadway and the adjacent property line excluding that area occupied by the sidewalks. Parkway shall also include any area within a roadway which is not open to vehicular travel.

"Sidewalk" shall mean any surface provided for the exclusive use of pedestrians.

Section 3. An application for a permit for newsracks shall be made within 10 (ten) business days of the placement of any newsrack in the public right of way.

Section 4. Applications for permits for newsracks shall be made to the City Administrator or his designee. The application shall be accompanied by the following:

- The name, address and telephone number of the applicant.
- The name, address and telephone number of a responsible person whom the City may notify or contact at any time concerning the applicant's newsrack.
- The number of newsracks and the exact proposed location of each.

b. There shall be an annual permit application fee of $10 per publication.

Section 5. Permits may be issued for the installation of a newsrack or newsracks without prior inspection of the location, but such newsrack or newsracks and the installation, use or maintenance thereof, shall be conditioned upon observance of the provisions of this article.

Such permit shall be valid for one year and shall be renewable annually.

Section 6. Each newsrack installed, used or maintained pursuant to this article shall be identified with the name, address, telephone number and permit number of the owner in a manner so as to be clearly visible.

Section 7. a. Liability Insurance. Each person prior to the granting of an encroachment permit under this section shall furnish to the City a certificate showing that such person has then in force public liability and property damage insurance naming the City as an additional insured, in an amount not less than One Hundred Thousand and no/100ths Dollars ($100,000.00) minimum liability combined single limit (bodily injury and property damage) per person and per occurrence. The permit holder shall provide and keep in force that policy of public liability insurance during such time as it continues to locate any newsrack under the terms of this section. The evidence of insurance filed with the City shall include a statement by the insurance carrier that thirty (30) days notice will be given to the City before any cancellation.

b. Indemnification. Every person operating or maintaining a newsrack upon or within the public property, rights-of-way, or public easements adjacent to streets of this City shall agree, prior to the granting of an encroachment permit, to indemnify and hold harmless the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, its officers and employees, from any loss, liability, damage, or cost sustained by any person or property, arising from the installation, operation, or use of such newsrack; provided, however, that such obligation to indemnify and hold harmless the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, its officers and employees, shall not extend to any loss, liability, damage, or cost resulting from the acts or property of another.

Section 8. a. General placement of newsracks.

1. All newsracks installed, used or maintained on a public sidewalk or parkway, or portion thereof, shall be of the K-49-16 modular type or its equivalent, or the K-100 double sized rack. All newsracks at a given location shall be part of a multi-unit configuration subject to the standards set forth in this ordinance. The newsrack facility shall be located so as to maximize the public convenience, health, safety and welfare, both as to accessibility to the newsracks and the use of the public right of way as a thoroughfare, and the aesthetic appearance of the area.

2. No newsrack shall be installed, used or maintained in the public right of way in the RC, R-1 or R-4 residential districts.

3. Newsracks shall only be placed adjacent to the wall of a building and shall be parallel to such wall and not more than six inches from the wall. No newsrack shall be placed or maintained in the public right of way opposite another newsrack.

4. This ordinance shall not apply to any newsrack placed in its present location prior to November 1, 1985, as set forth in Exhibit "A", except that each newsrack shall relocate into the City approved newsrack facility.

b. Installation and maintenance.

1. Stands for newsracks shall be either a supporting structure as constructed by the City, or a multi-unit pedestal, the MB-2 or MP-3 types or their equivalent. Such pedestal shall not exceed 19 inches in height.

2. For newsracks not in the supporting structures built by the City, the City shall construct protective sheds that conform in general appearance to the aesthetic standards of the existing supporting structures.

3. Newsrack mounts shall be painted beige.

4. No newsrack shall be used for commercial advertising, signs or publicity purposes, other than to state the name of the newspaper or periodical.

5. Each newsrack shall be maintained in good operating condition by its owner.

6. The permittee is responsible for the installation of newsracks. All work undertaken shall be the sole responsibility of the permit holder. Damage resulting from the installation of said newsrack shall be repaired immediately by and at the expense of the permittee. Failure to make required repairs shall result in City forces undertaking to make such repairs. The cost of repairs shall be chargeable as a civil debt to the permit holder and may be collected by the City in the same manner as it collects any other civil debt or obligation.

Section 9. No person shall install, use or maintain any newsrack pursuant to said permit which shall:

a. Project onto, into, or over any part of the roadway of any public street or alley open to vehicular traffic, or rest wholly or in part upon, along or over any portion of the roadway of any public street or alley open to vehicular traffic;

b. Be attached to any fire hydrant, power pole, sign post, tree, refuse container, or any other existing fixtures;

c. Be placed within five feet of any marked crosswalk;

d. Be within fifteen feet of the curb return of any unmarked crosswalk;

e. Rest within five feet of any hydrant or other emergency facility;

f. Rest within five feet of any driveway;

g. Rest within five feet ahead and forty-one feet to the rear of any sign marking a designated bus stop;

h. Rest within five feet of any bus bench;

i. Restrict, when open, the clear space for the passageway for pedestrians to less than six feet;

j. Be placed within three feet of any area improved with lawn, flowers, shrubs or trees; or within three feet of any display window of any building abutting the sidewalk or parkway or in such a manner as to impede or interfere with the reasonable use of such window display purpose;

k. Be placed at any location where the newsrack causes, creates or constitutes a traffic hazard;

l. Be placed at any location where the newsrack reasonably obstructs or interferes with access to or the use and enjoyment of abutting property;

m. Be placed where the newsrack will endanger persons or property;

n. Be placed where the newsrack will unreasonably interfere or obstruct the flow of pedestrian or vehicular traffic or access to parked vehicles on a highway;

o. Be placed within 200 feet of any other newsrack facility in the public right of way.

Section 10. Newsrack location limitation. The number of newsracks at a particular corner, intersection, or other location shall not exceed eight (8). Any exception to this limitation resulting in an increase or decrease in the number of authorized newsracks at any particular location shall be determined by the City Administrator or his designee subject to the following standards:

1. Sufficient clear space for the safe passage of pedestrians requiring amendment of the preceding limitation of six feet;

2. The width of the sidewalk prohibits the installation of newsracks;

3. Density of pedestrian traffic necessitates fewer newsracks than the authorized number indicated. It is the purpose of this section to provide maximum public access to all publications of general interest and circulation. Since available space is limited and recognizing that there is considerable public demand for publications of current concern, in determining which publication vending machines shall be issued a permit to remain in a particular location the City Administrator or his designee shall be guided by this Ordinance.

Section 11. Abandoned newsracks. No person who places or maintains a newsrack on the sidewalks of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea shall permit such newsrack to remain unused for a period of thirty (30) days or more.

Section 12. a. Any newsrack installed, used or maintained in violation of the provisions of this article may be subject to the removal and storage by the City Administrator or his designee. Such officer shall take steps to notify the owner thereof and request compliance within thirty calendar days prior to removal. At any time within said thirty day period, an administrative hearing to challenge the existence of a violation may be requested by the owner. Failure to request the hearing shall result in removal and storage of the newsracks by the City Administrator or his designee at any time after the expiration of the thirty day period.

b. If the owner requests a hearing as provided in paragraph (a) above, said hearing shall be scheduled within five days of the request and shall be administered by the City Administrator or his designee. The owner shall have thirty days from the date of any adverse ruling which may result from the hearing to comply with the provisions specified in the ruling. If after thirty days from the date of decision the owner has failed to comply with the provisions of this article cited in the decision, the subject newsracks shall be removed and stored by the City Administrator or his designee.

c. The cost of removal and/or storage by the City Administrator or his designee of any newsrack subject to this article shall be chargeable as a civil debt to the owner thereof, and may be collected by the City in the same manner as it collects any other civil debt or obligation. In addition, the newsracks in question shall be deemed to be unclaimed property, and may be disposed of accordingly.

Section 13. Compliance by Existing Owners. Permit holders of newsracks located within the City on the effective date of this Ordinance shall have thirty (30) days from said date to comply with the provisions of this Ordinance; thereafter, any newsracks not in compliance shall be subject to removal by the City Administrator or his designee as provided herein.

Section 14. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this Ordinance and to its approval by the City Council and shall cause the same to be published in accordance with the legal requirements; and thirty days from the final passage and adoption, this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect.

Section 15. Severability. If any term or provision of this Ordinance, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances, shall to any extent be invalid or unenforceable, the remainder of this Ordinance, or the application of such provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it is invalid or unenforceable, shall not be affected thereby, and each provision of this Ordinance shall be valid and shall be enforceable to the extent permissible by law.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 86-3

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING PORTIONS OF TITLE 17 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE ESTABLISHING THE PLANNING COMMISSION AS THE PLANNING AGENCY FOR THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA.

WHEREAS, Section 65100 of the State of California Government Code requires that cities establish a planning agency and further provides that each planning agency has the powers necessary to enable it to fulfill and carry out its planning functions as provided by the government code; and

WHEREAS, Title 17 of the City Municipal Code currently empowers several agencies with planning functions, including the Planning Commission, Board of Adjustments, Design Review Board, and Environmental Review Board; and

WHEREAS, these agencies as currently constituted have the same membership and the various titles for the same group of individuals causes confusion to the public and inefficiency in the proceedings on planning matters;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES HEREBY ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. All references currently appearing in Title 17 of the Municipal Code to the Board of Adjustments, Design Review Board, and Environmental Review Board are hereby changed to state the "Planning Commission."

Section Two. The following Sections in Title 17 of the Municipal Code shall be deleted in total and amended to read as follows:

17.46.010 DESIGNATION OF PLANNING AGENCY. In order to carry out its responsibility for planning and zoning, the City Council hereby designates the Planning Commission as the Planning Agency of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. The Planning Commission shall consist of seven members, residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea and appointed by the Mayor with concurrence of the City Council.

17.46.020 DUTIES AND POWERS OF THE PLANNING COMMISSION. The Planning Commission as the designated planning agency of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, shall have the following power and responsibilities:

- To develop and maintain a General Plan.
- To develop specific plans as may be necessary or desirable.
- To review environmental impact reports and initial studies.
- To periodically, at least once each fiscal year, review the capital improvement program of the City.
- To conduct public hearings, review evidence and determine requests for use permits, variances, rezoning and land use code amendments.
- To interpret the meaning and intent of the City's Land Use Code.
- To hear and render decisions on appeals of determinations made by administrative officials.
- To determine the consistency with the General Plan of capital improvements projects and programs.
- To review and act upon design review and design study applications.
- To prepare an annual report to the City Council on the status of the General Plan and progress in its application.

Section Three. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found unenforceable, such findings shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Four. Effective Date. This ordinance shall take effect thirty (30) days after final adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 14th day of January, 1986, by the following roll call vote:

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 86-2

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 17.46.030 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE RELATED TO STANDARDS FOR VARIANCES.

WHEREAS, the planning and zoning statutes of the State of California provide a procedure for local jurisdictions to grant variances from the dimensional requirements of local zoning ordinances; and

WHEREAS, the state statute requires variances to be based on physical hardships of property such as size, shape or topography which deprive property owners of development rights enjoyed by other property similarly zoned, but not affected by the unusual hardship conditions; and

WHEREAS, the intent of variances is to exactly restore those rights that are destroyed or compromised by hardships of the land thereby assuring that local zoning codes are fair and equitably administered to affect all properties in a similar manner; and

WHEREAS, the current City ordinances limit the grant of local variances to a ten percent (10%) relaxation of the standard dimensional requirements specified in the City's zoning ordinances; and

WHEREAS, unusual cases of extreme hardship of the land may require more than a ten percent (10%) variance to fully and completely address the hardship and thereby fulfill the intent of variances as authorized by the state statute;

NOW, THEREFORE, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does hereby ordain as follows:

Section One. The following sections in Title 17 of the Municipal Code shall be amended to read as follows:

17.46.030 VARIANCES. In granting variances, the Commission shall evaluate the conditions of the land to determine whether the property is deprived of development rights by unusual conditions not generally found on other property within the same zone or land use district. Variances shall generally not exceed a grant of more than ten percent (10%) beyond the regulation being varied. When the findings listed in Section 17.18.190 can be supported, the Planning Commission may issue variances from the dimensional requirements or standards listed below:

- Maximum site coverage and minimum open space regulations.
- Minimum street frontage regulations.
- Maximum height regulations.
- Minimum front, side or rear yard setback dimensions.

Section Two. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Three. Effective Date. This ordinance shall take effect thirty days after final adoption.

PACIFIC PANORAMA

Nestled into a Big Sur hillside is the adobe-walled, architect-designed, passive-solar gem of a home, pictured above. Newly completed, and hand-crafted by Big Sur artisans, the house fits comfortably on its site and is a delight to the eye.

Complete in every detail, even to furnishings, this perfect hideaway is ready to move into today. The living/dining/kitchen area overlooks entrance patio, and gently curving hills, to the sea beyond. Bedroom and bath enjoy similar views.

From each room, one enjoys vistas in all directions. Floor to ceiling windows admit winter sun to warm adobe walls. The well-planned storage areas, plus 2-car garage, utility room and large wine-cellar, add to livability and enlargement potential. The distant ridgeline marks the southern boundary of Andrew Molera State Park.

Unusual for Big Sur property, most of the 5-acre site is usable. Gardens, orchards, vineyards and livestock would enable an owner to be nearly self-sufficient in this ideal climate. A studio/guest/caretaker building creates additional flexibility. $265,000. Please contact our Coast Properties Division for more information. Don't miss this one!
